"It speaks itself, and what it does contain,
In all things needful to be known, is plain."

* * * *

The new tariff bill seems to indicate that the House is laboring under the impression that by the terms of the Constitution this Government consists of the President, the judiciary and the Congressional Golf Club.

* * * *

Old Henry Clay would turn over in his grave if he could read this Act of Abdication, by the terms of which the legislative successor in America of the British Parliament surrenders the power over the purse back into the hands of the Monarch from whom our ancestors wrung it in the days of Charles I. No more abject surrender of a precious prerogative has ever been proposed by the American Congress.

* * * *

We predict that that proposed new $850,000 incinerator is going to be badly needed by the time the Senate gets through with Chairman Hawley's masterpiece. Champ Clark used to say that he and two other men were the only ones in Congress who understood the tariff, and the others are dead, too.

The Horological Institute will meet this morning at 10 o'clock. Be on time, boys!

* * * *

Old Doc Sinclair, the well-known pharmacist, spends his first day at Prof. Peak's Sanitarium rolling a bitter pill.

* * * *

Mr. Mellon's status at the Senate appears to be considerably scrambled. If Bill Borah was chairman of a committee of one he'd dissent from himself and file a minority report.

* * * *

President Hoover shoots a timely dose of saline solution into the corpse of the Disarmament Commission.

* * * *

Model of a Mississippi spillway has been set up in the Senate Office Building, illustrating how by a mere Act of Congress the amount of water flowing down the old Father of Waters can be regulated by pressing an electric button in the White House. This concentration of all authority in the hands of the President is becoming epidemic.

* * * *

Although the tariff's going up,
And in the end it wrecks us,
We'll bet that it will never get
John Garner's goat of Texas.

* * * *

If this bill is a compromise what altitude record did the high tariff fellows try for?

* * * *

Representative Michaelson goes on trial. There's nothing more annoying than a Congressional leak.

* * * *

It's going to cost us more to eat—
'Twill cost us more to die;
The tariff bill is hard to beat,
And headed for the sky.

* * * *

You've got to cut the sugar down—
One lump instead of two,
For under Mr. Hawley's bill,
The poorhouse looms for you.

You'll have to build a house of frame,
Instead of one of brick—
There won't be any cream on milk—
The woolen schedule's slick!

For Hawley you may not give cheers,
(His bill—you may not like her),
But you'll admit, compared to him,
That Fordney was a piker.

* * * *

The beef schedule reminds us of the time the cow jumped over the moon.

* * * *

The wheat glut confronts the Western farmers with a quaint old law laid down in Political Economy that can't be repealed by an Act of Congress. As Artemus Ward would say, "this iz 2 mutch."

* * * *

Our scheme for relieving the grain market is to start a fund to buy the surplus for the starving Chinese. What a commentary it is upon so-called civilization that millions are dying for the want of a commodity that other millions can't give away.

* * * *

It is encouraging for a city consumer to note that licorice is put on the free list.

* * * *

For Uncle Sam, and Leo Diegel!

* * * *

The House of Representatives in its decadence seems to have forgotten that a tariff law is a revenue-raising measure, and that our Anglo-Saxon ancestors long ago took this power from the Crown and put it in the Commons.

* * * *

Still, it's better to have a dry sleuth blinded by a smoke screen than by the long green.

Mr. Coolidge will make a free statement to the press today, following his election to the New York Yard, but it is understood he has no $2 words in it.

PRESS BANNED AT JAIL DURING SINCLAIR TERM

Welfare Head Denies Rich Oil Man's Lawyer Influenced Order.

90 DAYS ARE BEGUN IN PHARMACIST ROLE

Man, Convicted of Senate Contempt, Still Nervous; Sleeps Lightly.

GEORGE S. WILSON,
directo. of public welfare, who yesterday ordered newspaper reporters barred from the District Jail while Harry F. Sinclair is a prisoner there.

George S. Wilson, director of the Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia, yesterday issued an order barring newspaper reporters from the District Jail while Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, is serving a 90-day sentence for contempt of the Senate.

Wilson charged that newspaper reporters had "completely demoralized jail business" since Sinclair's incarceration.

Asked if he had issued the ban following a talk with Mr. Sinclair's lawyers, Mr. Wilson said:

"No, I haven't seen Sinclair's lawyers nor do I know the prisoner."

"Because he is wealthy is one of the reasons why he should be protected from molestation by newspaper reporters," Mr. Wilson said. "You don't interview other prisoners, and he should be given the same protection the others have."

All Persons Affected.

When informed that newspaper men have interviewed prisoners on many occasions, Wilson said:

"The order still stands."

Mr. Wilson further stated the ban would affect all persons excepting lawyers of the prisoners in the jail, and those relatives and friends who obtain permission to visit them during the regular visiting hours.

Asked how long the ban would be in effect, Wilson replied:

"I can't say. It's in effect now, though."

Sinclair's second night in jail was spent "at ease." After a dinner consisting of beef stew, stewed prunes and bread and coffee, the millionaire prisoner talked a while with his fellow prisoners, loitered around the dormitory in which he sleeps and then sauntered across the rotunda to the prison infirmary.

One of the first questions Sinclair asked when he surrendered Monday night was whether he would have an opportunity to read. He spent several hours under the high-powered drop lights in the infirmary last night reading the newspapers and other articles.

Shuns Newspaper Men.

He shunned the cozy atmosphere in the front office where the "white collar boys," as the prison trusties are called, swapped tales while listening to a high-powered radio because, he said, he wanted to steer clear of the newspaper boys.

Sinclair has confided in his fellow prisoners that he wants to keep away from the newspaper reporters at the jail until "this thing blows over."

George P. Hoover, of this city, one of Sinclair's counsel, visited the prisoner at the jail about 5 o'clock yesterday. Mr. Hoover would not disclose the nature of his call, other than to say that, as Mr. Sinclair's attorney, he had a right to visit the prisoner.

"He appeared cheerful and seemed pleased with his new duties," Mr. Hoover, added, however.

Sinclair's first full day in jail found

DEBENTURE CLAUSE HELD LIKELY TO WIN

Defeat Is Faced by President in His First Major Contest With Senate.

VOTE ANTICIPATED TODAY

(Associated Press.)

Despite determined efforts by Senate administration leaders to rally a majority for defeat of the export debenture plan opposed by President Hoover, an element of unsteadiness within their ranks yesterday brought discouragement on what was expected to be the eve of a vote on that feature of the farm relief bill.

The most recent check by the debenture group was asserted to show a margin of 5 votes in favor of retaining that disputed section. Members of the administration group declined to estimate their strength, but the opinion was expressed that the vote would be close.

This outlook was conveyed to President Hoover yesterday by Senator Watson, the Republican leader. The veteran Indiana legislator declared later that even if the debenture plan were approved by the Senate, that provision would be eliminated in the ensuing conference by a committee of Senate and House members.

Watson is sponsoring he elimination move in the Senate and his success or failure was expected to be known late tomorrow or Thursday. An agreement to limit further debate on the debenture plan goes into effect at 2 p. m. today and under the usual procedure a vote follows within a few hours.

The confidence radiated by supporters of the debenture proposal was more striking than usuaul yesterday in contrast to the reticence of administration leaders to discuss their chances optimistically. The vote is looked upon generally as providing the first contest of major proportions between President Hoover and the Senate, and those opposing the Chief Executive are made up practically entirely from the Democratic and independent Republican ranks.

While members of the administration group discussed the outlook among themselves in relation to how individual senators classed as "doubtful" might vote, such comments for publication were not forthcoming. An element of uneasiness was apparent however.

With major interest at present concentrated on the fate of the export

FRANCE TO ASK U.S. FOR PLANS ON NAVAL CUTS

SAME STEPS LIKELY BY OTHER NATIONS

Von Bernstorff, Leaving Geneva, Says He Is Not Optimistic.

HOOVER SEES HOPE FOR ARMS EFFORTS

He Says Results Achieved at Parley Will Be Followed Up Promptly.

Geneva, May 7 (A.P.).—France will ask the Washington Government for details of its suggestions for reducing naval armament, French spokesman at Geneva said tonight.

It is assumed here that the British, Italian and Japanese governments will similarly instruct their ambassadors to get in touch with the Washington authorities in order the various nations may inaugurate studies of the disarmament proposals and have something definite on which to work.

In his final speech to the preliminary disarmament conference, Lord Cushendun of England made particular reference to the expected American proposals.

What the governments have in mind particularly is believed to be a technical explanation as to how the United States regards the question of reckoning equivalent tonnage.

Germans Not Hopeful.

Before leaving Geneva, Count von Bernstorff, the German delegate to the conference, issued a statement discounting the optimism of the closing address by Chairman Politis of Greece. Von Bernstorff declared that this optimism was not shared by the German delegation nor did he think it would be shared by public opinion in the majority of countries. "Our only hope is that at the International Disarmament Conference, the delegates will have new instructions permitting genuine reduction in armaments" he concluded.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover remains hopeful and confident over the outcome of the sixth meeting of the League of Nations Preparatory Commission on Disarmament, which adjourned Monday to an indefinite date. Refusing to share the pessimistic views emanating from Geneva, the President yesterday injected a new breath of life into the cause of naval reductions and thereby did much to encourage renewed and persistent hope for the future.

Replying to inquiries from the press, the President said:

"I am greatly gratified at the promising character of the results for naval reduction arising out of the recent Geneva conference. All of the principal naval powers have expressed adherence to the principles suggested by the

HOOVER CAUSES RAIL RATE CUTS TO HELP WHEAT

Western Roads to Assist Meeting Emergency in Export Grain.

LOWER SCHEDULES WILL END SEPT. 30

Plan Is Subject to Action of Trade Body, Which Meets Tomorrow.

BARGE OPERATORS TO FILE PROTEST

Voluntary Reductions Follow Similar Steps Taken by Eastern Carriers.

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.).—Responding to the request of President Hoover to assist in an agricultural emergency, Western trunk line railroads today announced freight rate reductions on wheat and wheat flour for export.

The cuts, made subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commision, range from 5½ cents to 11½ cents a 100 pounds and are to expire September 30, 1929.

The rate changes shall not be regarded as a precedent or as an admission that present rates are not reasonably low, said a statement issued by E. B. Boyd, chairman of the Western Trunk Line committee. Eastern railroads recently took similar action on their wheat rates.

"The changes shall be construed only as indicative of the attitude of the carriers to assist the President of the United States in his program for relieving an emergency," said Boyd.

Move to Boost Exports.

"Due to the large carry over from last season's wheat crop and the immediate prospects for a large production this coming season, it has been urged that all interests involved, including the railroads, should assist in effecting a reduction of the surplus through exportation, to avert if possible a lowering of prices. The Western carriers are hereby contributing their full proportion of the aid suggested and desired."

Last week the Western railroads, following action of the Eastern lines, sent a committee to Washington to confer with the President.

The schedule of reductions, which Boyd termed "abnormally low," follows:

From the Missouri River to Chicago, 11½ cents per 100 pounds; to the Mississippi River, 7½ cents; from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago, 7 cents; from Omaha to the Gulf, 20 cents; from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Atchison and Leavenworth to the Gulf, 19 cents; from Minneapolis to Duluth, 4 cents; from Omaha and Sioux City to Duluth, 11½ cents; from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Atchison and Leavenworth to Duluth, 13 cents; from St. City to to Duluth, 13 cents; from St. Louis to New Orleans, 12½ cents.

A reduction of 6 cents is made from the Missouri River to Chicago and to

TARIFF BILL PROPOSES FARM, WOOL, SUGAR AID; WIDENS HOOVER POWER

Reforming of Commission Makes President Rate Arbiter.

PLAN ADDS 1 MEMBER; MAY ALTER PERSONNEL

New Schedule Is Said to Satisfy Nobody, Not Even Executive.

TREASURY SECRETARY CHIEF ON APPRAISALS

Some Members of Present Board Bound to Go Under Change.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Reorganization of the Tariff Commission, in fact the whole tariff structure, in which any one or all of the present members may be replaced, is contemplated in the bill reported by the House ways and means committee yesterday. The making of tariff rates would be virtually transferred to the President.

The present commission of six members would be enlarged to seven and the President empowered to appoint whoever he wanted, without regard to political associations. That some of the present members of the commission are to go, under this arrangement is generally understood.

The bill, comprising 434 pages and with an accompanying report about as involved, was generally described at first as satisfying nobody, "not even the President." At least three State delegations in the House went into conference. It will be several days, however, before the alignments develop to the point of determining whether the measure is to have trouble in the House.

Acclaim Not Expected.

It will be some time before the full significance of the general characterization, "satisfies nobody," is known. Naturally few industries received full increases sought, and no one expected a bill so comprehensive and important to be greeted with acclaim.

The 50 per cent flexible provision remains unchanged, but the Secretary of the Treasury is made the last word on appraisals. While there was no suggestion of abolishing either the Customs Court or the Customs Court of Appeals, it was generally agreed that under the structure proposed there would be little work for them to do.

Reorganization Provision.

The provision for the reorganization of the Tariff Commission reads:

"The United States Tariff Commission shall be composed of seven commissioners, to be hereafter appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, but each member now in office shall continue to serve until his successor (as designated by the President at the time of nomination) takes office. No person shall be eligible for appointment as a commissioner unless he is a citizen of the United States, and, in the judgment of the President, is possessed of qualifications requisite for developing expert knowledge of tariff problems and efficiency in administering the provisions of Part II of this title.

"Terms of office of the commissioners first taking office after the date of the enactment of this act, shall expire, as designated by the President at the time of nomination, one at the end of each of the first seven years after the date of the enactment of act. The term of office of a successor to any such commissioner shall expire seven years from the date of the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed, except that any commissioner appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his

DIEGEL WINS MEDAL IN BRITSH TOURNEY

U. S. Pro's Brilliant Round of 70 Gains Him Qualifying Honors.

AMERICANS SUCCESSFUL

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Gullane, Scotland, May 7 (A.P.).—With Leo Diegel, professional golf champion of the United States, showing the way, American golfers today made a highly successful entrance into the British open championship. Diegel, with a record-breaking 70 over the Muirfield course, led the big qualifying field with a score of 144 for the 36 holes of prechampionship play and he was followed into the select circle of qualifying players by most of his fellow countrymen.

It no longer can be said that British weather at its worst can dismay golfers from the United States. Yesterday's howling east coast rainstorm and a gusty wind today played all the tricks that weather can play with a golf ball, but all the serious contenders from the United States got under the wire with 162 or better, necessary to qualify.

Close behind Diegel with a 36-hole score of 147 was Bobby Cruickshank, who was bred on the wild winds of Scotland. George Von Elm, Detroit amateur, scored 151 to go into a tie with George Duncan and Albert Whiting, Britons, for fifth place, a stroke behind a great British amateur, Cyril Tolley, and Reginald Whitcombe youngest of the well-known golfing brothers.

Von Elm was the only American amateur to qualify, but he was the only one expected to continue in competition after today.

Until the end it did not seem that the American Ryder Cup Team might go into the championship play intact, as Ed Dudley scored 162, the limit. Al Espinosa, scoring 161, and Johnny Farrell, 160, were in danger for a time, but the rest of the Ryder Cup Team and the other visitors from America were well placed.

The international aspect of the championship, with the exception of the usual Anglo-American fight, was largely eliminated by the weeding-out process of the qualifying rounds, but Jose Jurado, with a score of 153, retained to carry the hopes of Argentina.

The adopted Americans, Cruickshank, Jim Barnes, MacDonald Smith, Tommy Armour and Jimmie Thompson, also conquered the worst weather their native land could muster, and Wild Bill Mehlhorn, lone raider, who came to

OPPOSITION IN SENATE FORECAST BY LEADERS

Whether Measure Will Get White House Approval Stirs Interest.

(Associated Press.)

A readjustment of the protective tariff structure set up seven years ago after the Republicans took control of the Government was proposed by the majority members of the ways and means committee in a voluminous bill presented yesterday to the House and designed to replace the Fordney-McCumber law of 1922.

Substantial increases in rates designed to afford greater protection to American farmers, sugar producers, wool growers and many manufacturing industries were recommended, although some schedules, notably those dealing with tobacco and spirits, were left unchanged. Few alterations were proposed in other schedules, dealing with books and paper and iron and steel.

The increases generally accredited on Capitol Hill with being of the greatest moment to the people were 64-100 of a cent a pound on Cuban raw sugar, with the new rate 2.40 cents a pound, and 3 cents a pound on raw wool, with the new rate 34 cents.

Compensatory increases in practically all manufactures of wool, including clothing, blankets and the like, were proposed, with like increases affecting molasses, maple sugar, sirup and dextrose.

Cotton Goods Advanced.

Although raw cotton would be left on the free list by the bill, substantial advances in duties were proposed in the case of cotton goods, more particularly those of the finer grades, with the explanation that the purpose is to improve conditions in the New England textile industry as far as may be possible by means of the tariff.

The Republican bill was referred back to the ways and means committee automatically and the Democrats on the committee will be invited to join in its consideration for the first time probably tomorrow. They then will have opportunity to register their views, although they entertain little hope of being able to effect any changes in the measure as now drawn.

Pending the meeting of the committee, Representative Garner, of Texas, Democratic floor leader, appealed to the Republican membership of the House not to permit itself to be "gagged" by the adoption of a rule which would cut off in the House all amendments to the bill except those offered by committee members.

Whether the bill as reported by the committee Republicans meets the wish of President Hoover for a "limited" revision of the tariff was a subject of conjecture last night. At one time the Chief Executive was known to oppose the opening up of the whole tariff structure at the special session as the new bill apparently does.

Senate Controversy Predicted.

Some leaders in both political parties on Capitol Hill predict that if the bill were passed by the House in substantially its present form, there would be a long controversy in the Senate, with prospects that the special session which began last month will run many weeks beyond July 4, the date Republican leaders have said adjournment could be taken.

Chairman Hawley in a statement supplementing the committee's report said

Portes Gil Opens Way To Church Agreement

Willing, He Says, to Exchange Views With Archbishop Ruiz or Any Catholic Leaders to Obtain Just Cooperation With Republic.

Mexico City, May 7 (U.P.).—President Emilio Portes Gil issued a statement tonight indicating that the government was willing to discuss with the Catholic Church the possibility of settling the Mexican "religious question."

The question of regulating religious matters in Mexico has long been one of the vital issues of the republic. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made to reach a settlement which would be satisfactory to the government and to religious elements.

Conflict over Mexican religious laws has resulted in much bloodshed in recent years, the "Cristeros," or religious extremists, having resorted to open warfare at various times. Portes Gil recently said, however, that the government did not consider the church in any way responsible for the acts of the Cristeros."

Stringent regulations forcing priests to register with the government or be outlawed have been enforced, however, under the Portes Gil administration.

President Portes Gil's statement indicated that he was ready to discuss any move "which would benefit the Mexican people."

"I am pleased to note that the archbishop said the religious conflict in Mexico was not caused by anything which could not be corrected by men of sincere good will," the president said when asked to reply to an interview on the religious question given out by Archbishop Ruiz y Flores. "Also, that Catholic churchmen are prepared to cooperate with the Mexican government in any just moral effort for betterment of the Mexican people.

"I already have publicly stated that in my opinion the Catholic Church as an institution is unconnected with the rebellion which has just finished. I also added that many members of the clergy in Mexico recommended the respect of law and order. Unfortunately a minority of unimportance, which does not represent either the Mexican nation or Catholicism, is apparently a partisan of violence."

Portes Gil declared that although Mexican laws prohibited official relations with the Vatican that this would not prevent the government from "exchanging impressions" with the clergy or engaging in personal conversations with churchmen concerning the interpretation of laws applying to the clergy.

"Archbishop Ruiz y Flores, whom I understand is the oldest Mexican prelate, three years ago had an interview with Calles. Unfortunately this interview failed to produce results. If the archbishop wishes to discuss with me means of obtaining cooperation with the Mexican people, which he desires, I would not regard it inconvenient to deal with him thereon."

The statement was issued in reply to an interview issued by Archbishop Ruiz of Michoacan. The interview was issued in Washington.

The archbishop has long been active in the controversy between the govern-

Montreal, Quebec, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The mystery of the disappearance of Barbara Pitcher, handsome 18-year-old McGill University student, was solved today with the discovery of her body in the Back River, whirling around in an eddy caused by the construction of a power dam at the north end of the Island of Montreal, near the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Sault au Recollet. The body had evidently been in the water some weeks, but an autopsy by Dr. Derome revealed that there were no marks of violence on it and that death was due to drowning.

the duties proposed in the bill "are intended to adjust differences in competitive conditions at home and abroad based upon our experience under the existing tariff law."

The chairman added that while the policy is to admit foreign products under the comity of nations, the Republican party believes that "domestic competition is far more effective than foreign competition in regulating prices, and, under mass production, of lowering prices to consumers."

"In the present bill, although a percentage of duties have been readjusted," he continued, "the average rate on dutiable imports will not be materially changed. Readjustments have been made where the differences in competitive conditions, the protection of labor, and the state of the industries affected appeared to require them and the public interest to justify."

Changes in Grains.

In the grains the bill would make two principal changes: Increase the corn tariff from 15 cents to 25 cents a bushel and rice from 2 to 2½ cents a pound. No alteration in the 42 cents a bushel duty on wheat, fixed by President Coolidge, was proposed.

A general step-up in the duties on products of the dairy industry would be made. The rate on fresh milk would be doubled at 5 cents a gallon, while the rate on cream was proposed at 48 cents a gallon as against 20 cents at present.

Sweetened milk, condensed or evaporated, would carry a rate of 2¼ cents a pound against 1½ cents, while unsweetened condensed or evaporated milk would be boosted from 1 cent to 1 4-10 cents a pound.

The existing rate of 12 cents a pound on butter, fixed by the President, would be unchanged, along with the presidential rate of 7 cents a pound on cheese and substitutes.

Substantial changes affecting the cattle and hog industry were proposed. The duty on swine would be increased from one-half a cent a pound to 2 cents, while that of fresh pork would be advanced from three-quarters of a cent to 2½ cents.

Meat Rates Raised.

Duties on cattle would not be changed, but the rate on fresh beef and veal would be raised 100 per cent, to 6 cents a pound. Sheep, lamb and goats would carry a duty of $3 a head, against the present $2, with the rate on fresh lamb 7 cents a pound instead of 4 cents.

The building materials of five principal commodities, iron and steel remained practically unchanged, with the exception of duties on hardening materials. Logs and lumber of pine, fir, spruce and hemlock remained on the free list, but cedar shingles and lumber were transferred from the free list and given a duty of 25 per cent, ad valorem. Maple and birch lumber also were taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent ad valorem.

Common building brick, another free list commodity, was made dutiable at $1.25 a thousand. Hydraulic cement, also now on the free list, was given a rate of 8 cents a hundred pounds to protect seaboard manufacturers from foreign competition.

Hides remain on the free list, together with shoe leather and leather boots and shoes. The majority of the committee also ignored requests to take from the free trade category raw jute, bananas and many other commodities not produced in the United States.

Dye Duty Is Retained.

In retaining the present duty on dyes based on the American selling price the committee refused pleas of dye manufacturers to restore the 60 per cent ad valorem duty in force during the first two years after the passage of the Fordney-McCumber law.

Rates in the chemical schedule were changed in the case of 39 commodities, of which 33 were increases and 6 decreases. Some of the increases represent compensatory duties only.

Among the oils, an increased duty from 3.3 cents to 4.16 cents a pound on linseed or linseed oil was proposed. The rate on soy bean oil would be stepped up from 2½ cents to 5 cents a pound as compensatory for the increased duty on the raw product.

The existing law on watch and clock movements has been entirely rewritten, and the present duties generally increased. The fish paragraphs also have been rewritten to accord with modern commercial practices with comparatively few changes in duty.

The duty on poultry was adjusted to 6 cents a pound for live birds, in place of the present 3 cents; 8 cents a pound for dressed fowls in place of 6 cents, except turkeys which are given 10 cents a pound as against 8 cents now.

The proposed duty on eggs is 10 cents a dozen in place of 8 cents, while frozen eggs are advanced 2 cents to 8 cents a pound.

Chairman Hawley said with respect to the agricultural schedule that "special attention has been given to the promotion of the growth of crops or products that will replace the great cereals which are now grown in surplus quantities."

"Forage crops, some fruits, nuts and crops producing oil-bearing seeds have been given increased duties," he continued. "The importance of a substitute crop can be noted from the fact that dairy and poultry products now bring to the farmers about one-fourth of their gross income.

"In the Southern tier of States of the United States vegetables, including beans, peas, tomatoes and others are grown for the winter and early spring markets and duties deemed sufficient to enable the producers of these articles to compete in the markets have been written into the bill."

Because of the many technical changes made by the committee in the existing law, comparisons in this schedule are not feasible. One of the important changes made is that cotton cloth containing artificial silk shall be subject to an additional duty of 5 per cent, while cloth, in chief value of cotton containing wool, would be dutiable at 60 per cent.
"Hit-and-miss" rag rugs, chiefly of cotton, 55 per cent; Chenille rugs, 45 per cent; all other floor coverings of cotton, 35 per cent. These rates are comparable to a flat 40 per cent in the present law and 30 per cent in the Underwood.
The committee increased the duties on cotton yarns; cotton sewing thread and handwork cottons; cloth, containing silk; cloth containing wool; tapestries and other Jacquard-figured quilts or bedspreads made of single fabrics, and Chenille rugs. It decreased the duties on tire fabrics and warp-knit fabric in the piece. It recommended that women's unembroidered warp-knit fabric gloves, of which commercial production in this country has practically ceased, be placed on the free list.

MISS IDA V. CORBIN DIES.

Miss Ida Virginia Corbin, a nurse at Mount Alto Hospital, died last night after a short illness. She had been a nurse at the hospital for several years, going there almost immediately after her graduation in 1920 at Casualty Hospital.

The body will be shipped to Wayers Cave, Va., for interment. Her parents, Mr and Mrs. Robert Corbin, and several sisters reside at that place.

TARIFF BILL MAKES PRESIDENT ARBITER

PERSONNEL CHANGE SEEN

Board Now Bipartisan.

The accompanying report points out the President may either keep or replace any of the present members. At present the board is bipartisan, consisting of three Republicans and three Democrats. They are Chairman Thomas O. Marvin, Vice Chairman Alfred P. Dennis and Edgar B. Brossard, Republicans; Sherman J. Lowell, Lincoln Dixon and Frank Clark, Democrats.

Dennis, it is believed, will be retained. As to which of the others may go is anybody's guess.

The virtual transfer of the rate-making authority to the President lies in this authority for him to set up his own board, in the flexible provision permitting him to reduce or lower a rate 50 per cent and in the general readjustment of the provisions for obtaining competitive costs, together with establishing the Treasury Secretary as the last word in appraisals.

Selling Cost Plan Permitted.

It is provided that the United States selling-cost plan of determining the valuation of imports may be used whenever satisfactory information can not be obtained otherwise. It has been customary heretofore to apply the selling-cost plan in prescribed instances. These limitations have been removed.

There is, however, strangely enough, no inclination on the part of the House minority leadership to oppose the revamping of the tariff structure. The indications are that they will make their greatest fight on specified rates.

As one leader expressed it yesterday, to turn the rate making of any commodity over to the President it is only necessary to put it on the tariff list. The rate prescribed in the bill may or may not be adhered to in the administration of the tariff act.

Full Power Discussed.

But, he said, if the President is to be given any power at all, if Congress is to delegate any of its authority, it is better that he be given full power. The Democrats are against the entire theory of delegating tariff power to the President, the first great step in that direction being taken with the passage of the flexible tariff bill.

In connection with this broadening of the President's tariff powers, Democrats cited his farm relief plan, whereby a board with broad, undefined powers is to be set up.

Administrative changes in the tariff act were recommended by the President in his message to Congress. He did not, however, discuss or suggest the reorganization of the Tariff Commission. But it is understood that the plan has his approval.

Detective Throws Gun At Men Carrying Glass

Following the orders of his chief, not to fire his gun unless absolutely necessary, Detective Robert F. Langdon, of Fifth Precinct, who was recently absolved of blame in the shooting and death of a colored man during a rum chase, has evolved a new use for his revolver to stop fugitives. It was revealed in Police Court yesterday.

When Decatur Jackson, colored, was brought before Judge Mattingly, Langdon explained that he had seen the man at South Capitol and K streets with an object under his coat. Questioned, the man began to run, dropping jars of liquor on the street. Langdon chased him and finally threw his gun at the fugitive, who stopped at once. Jackson was fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days for breaking glass in the street.

Mill-Strike Troops Opposed by Women

Trade Union League Wires Protest to Governor of Tennessee.

Protesting the presence of State militia in Elizabethton, Tenn., as the Rayon Mills there reopened despite the fact that 5,000 workers are still on strike, the National Women's Trade Union League yesterday sent the following telegram to Gov. Horton:

"The National Women's Trade Union League, in convention assembled in Washington, D. C., representing workers from many trades and from many parts of the country, petition you to withdraw the militia from Elizabethton, in Tennessee. We strongly oppose the use of State troops in industrial disputes and most emphatically in the case of the Rayon workers at Elizabethton, who have shown by their restraint of conduct that they believe in law and order and arbitration as the way to settle industrial disputes. We know from experience that the presence of State troops is provocative of disorder and conflict and believe that is why you have been requested to send them. We repeat our appeal to withdraw the troops."

MICHAELSON LOSES PLEA TO DROP CASE

Illinois Representative Placed on Trial on a Liquor-Smuggling Charge.

FOUR WITNESSES HEARD

Key West, Fla., May 7 (A.P.).—The trial of Representative M. Alfred Michaelson, of Illinois, charged with violating the prohibition laws by smuggling liquor into this country in baggage from Cuba, began its delayed course late today.

Testimony of only four of the Government 21 witnesses was placed in the record, after nearly two hours had been consumed in preliminary skirmishing, in selection of the jury and statements of both sides.

Judge Halstead L. Ritter denied a plea in abatement, a demurrer and a motion to quash the indictments. The defense, however, won a ruling that the court would reserve decision on the objections to admission of the testimony of the four witnesses heard today until the prosecution had shown whether it would be able to connect the evidence with the charges against the defendant.

Michaelson went to trial on only two of the three counts of the indictment, the first count, charging possession, having been withdrawn.

Acting District Attorney W. P. Hughes said the count was withdrawn because the Government felt that the charge of possession was covered in the count alleging transportation. The other count is that of importation.

By testimony of the four witnesses today the Government sought to establish that six trunks, which, the Government charges, were Michaelson's baggage, were transported from Key West to Jacksonville and seized there by dry agents after liquor was found to be trickling from a trunk in which a bottle had been broken.

Only one witness has been named by defense counsel. He is Walter Gramm, Chicago coal dealer, said to be a close friend of Mr. Michaelson. Defense attorneys refused to divulge what he might tell the jury.

Divorce Suit Ends World Honeymoon

Mrs. Lois Dodge Manning Charges Former Officer With Beating Her.

Detroit, Mich., May 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lois Knowlson Dodge Manning filed a suit for divorce here today from her husband, Benjamin Franklin Manning. Cruelty and nonsupport are charged.

Mrs. Manning married Manning, a former Coast Artillery lieutenant, at Honolulu September 1, 1927, less than four months after her divorce from Horace E. Dodge, of Detroit. The couple started on a honeymoon trip around the world, and Mrs. Manning charges that her husband beat and insulted her during the trip.

They separated before the trip was finished, Manning leaving the ship at Shanghai. He went to Reno, Nev., and announced his intention of filing divorce proceedings. Mrs. Manning said at the time that she already had filed suit in Wayne County but withdrew it when she heard of Manning's intention. Mrs. Manning has two children by her marriage with Horace E. Dodge. Custody of the children is shared by them.

Intruders Hold Women At Bay; Loot Residence

Police this morning were seeking to apprehend two colored men who at 10:30 o'clock last night forcibly entered the house at 1529 Q street northwest, shoved Miss Mary C. Barnum, one of the three elderly residents, against the wall and ransacked the place. One of the men was armed with a pistol and held the three women at bay while his companion sought loot. It was not determined at an early hour whether anything of value was missing.

Miss Mary C. Barnum, who resides at the house with her sisters, Miss Lurancy Barnum and Mrs. Harriet E Jones, told police that she had opened the door preparatory to locking it for the night when the two men pushed their way in. Miss Barnum furnished police with descriptions of the pair.

Bolivia Protests Plan For Tacna-Arica Pact

(Associated Press.)

A new complication in the settlement of the 46-year-old Tacna-Arica controversy arose yesterday with the filing by the Bolivian government with the State Department of a note of protest against the solution reached between Peru and Chile.

Eduardo Diez de Medina, Bolivian Minister to Washington, announced he had received such a note from the government at La Paz for transmission to the department and would make public its text letter. The note is understood to contend that Bolivia was deprived of an outlet to the sea in the war of the Pacific in which Chile acquired the provinces of Tacna and Arica.

Actress' Stage Lines Prove Tragic Prophesy

Toronto, Ontario, May 7 (U.P.).—One of the last lines spoken on the stage by Margaret Bird, Philadelphia actress, proved today to be a sinister prophecy.

"Performances are never interrupted simply because one of the artists happens to die," spoke the actress in the play, "The Torch Bearers," last night. It turned out to be Miss Bird's final appearance. Trapped by flames in an apartment a few hours later, she and her director, Forest Cummings, who had answered her screams for aid, perished.

Today the manager of the Victoria Theater said the curtain would rise for "The Torch Bearers" as usual tonight.

PREMIER'S NEPHEW DEAD FROM WOUND

Life of 7-Year-Old Boy Is Cost of Assassin's Attack on Waldemaras.

$5,000 REWARD POSTED

Berlin, May 7 (A.P.).—Premier Waldemaras, of Lithuania, owes his life today to his faithful adjutant, Lieut. Gudinas, who died shielding the premier with his own body when an attempt was made to assassinate him last night at Kovno.

A Telegraphen Union dispatch from Kovno today says that when the shot rang out Gudinas, who was close beside the premier, stepped in front of him with extended arms.

Premier Waldemaras himself carried his wounded 7-year-old nephew into the lobby of a nearby theater. When the German Charge d'Affaires at Kovno later went to congratulate him on his escape, he found the premier with his wife sitting at the boy's bedside in the State hospital. The premier remained with his nephew all night and attended to foreign office business as usual in the morning. The boy died today.

The Telegraphen Union says that M. Waldemaras blames Lithuanian and Vienna terrorists for the attack. German frontier police were notified during the night to watch the border for suspects.

The daughter of a university professor, M. Jodakis, was wounded slightly in the leg.

Vossische Zeitung tonight reports the Lithuanian government has offered 50,000 lites (about $5,000) for the seizure of the assassins. A huge protest demonstration against the attack was held this afternoon in the principal thoroughfare of Kovno.

The local newspaper Lietuvos Aidas declared, "Yesterday's plot was a link in the long chain of attempts by political emigrants at Vilna to do away with the head of the government. The significance of this crime at present can not be estimated, but above all relations with Poland are bound to become more strained." The newspaper accused the Polish government of supplying Lithuanian exiles with funds and weapons.

WILL GIVE ORDERS TO SINCLAIR

Henry Miller Service.

Dr. Morris Hyman, jail physician, and Miss Kathleen Wright, nurse, who will give orders to Harry F. Sinclair, oil millionaire, who has been assigned to the jail pharmacy during his 90-day term for contempt of the Senate.

WILSON BANS NEWSPAPER MEN FROM JAIL FOR SINCLAIR TERM

him serving in the capacity of a pharmacist, in the prison dispensary.

Learned Trade in College.

Sinclair seemed as well pleased with his duties as did prison officials, who explained that a registered pharmacist had been one of the principal needs of the jail for a number of years. Heretofore, all prescriptions were compounded at Gallinger Hospital. Sinclair is a registered pharmacist, having studied this profession while a student at the University of Kansas.

Dr. Morris Hyman, a youthful jail physician, and Miss Kathleen Wright, a pretty blonde nurse from Gallinger Hospital are Sinclair's "bosses."

When Sinclair isn't compounding medicines, he will fill a general utility role in the prison infirmary, assisting in minor operations and keeping the place ship-shape.

Sleeps Only Four Hours.

Sinclair was an early riser yesterday. Although prison regulations permit those in the dormitory in the east wing where he is confined to sleep until 5:45 o'clock, he arose a few minutes after 5 o'clock.

For the next two hours Sinclair walked around the dormitory and in the rear of the jail, inspecting his new abode. He was natilly dressed in a blue suit, a tan shirt, dark tie and tan shoes. A blue handkerchief hung from his coat pocket.

Sinclair spoke freely to the other prisoners with whom he had slept. He said he did not get to sleep until about 1 o'clock, but felt refreshed when he awakened. Before going to breakfast, Sinclair made his bed, an iron cot, and folded the two blankets under which he slept at the foot of the bed. All prisoners are required to make their beds and aid in keeping the dormitory tidy.

Has Light Breakfast.

Sinclair's first meal in jail consisted of toast and coffee. He spurned all other foods offered him. He still appeared slightly nervous yesterday and smoked one cigarette after another in the morning hours.

The "heavy mail" Sinclair told Maj. William L. Peak, superintendent of the institution, he expected, consisted yesterday of one letter. A large number of letters had been sent to the jail for Sinclair before he began serving his term, but these were sent back, marked "not at."

Trusties and prison clerks, noted for their aptitude to size up quickly a new prisoner spoke highly of Sinclair's attitude. He told those with whom he talked in the dormitory that he was going to take his sentence philosophically and make the best of it. The prisoners in the dormitory all said they were "for him."

The new prison pharmacist's duties end each day at 4 o'clock. Between this hour and bedtime, usually around 9:30 or 10 o'clock for prison clerks and others doing special duty, Sinclair will have to himself. He will have an opportunity to exercise in the rotunda, read, or listen in on the radio with the prisoners working in the front office.

Boy Held as Farmer's Slayer; Motive Obscure

Oswego, N. Y., May 7 (A.P.).—For no apparent reason, 14-year-old Paul Arquette, farm hand, shot and killed his employer, Adelbert Kilts, prominent Albion farmer, in the barn of his farm today. The boy was caught later by State troopers and brought here.

Mrs. Ernestine Charlton, Kilts' housekeeper, said the boy entered the house shortly after Kilts had gone to do the daily milking and asked for the shotgun. A few minutes later she heard a shot and found Kilts dead.

Town Officials Fined For Saving Evidence

St. Paul's, N. C., May 7 (A.P.).—The chief of police, the solicitor of recorder's court and a town commissioner each paid $10 and costs in municipal court here this morning for defying the edict of Recorder John D. Canady that confiscated liquor should be destroyed.

They are Chief of Police J. T. McRainy, Town Commissioner D. E. Semon, and Solicitor C. Scott Howie, who were cited for contempt of court because they insisted on saving the liquor for evidence.

DEBENTURE VICTORY EXPECTED IN SENATE

debenture plan, once that question is disposed of, the Senate expects to act without undue delay on the farm bill itself. A vote on the measure probably will be taken late this week or early next week.

Last-minute arguments were made in the Senate yesterday for and against the debenture plan. Senator Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, who began a defense of the Hoover farm program Monday, declared the last election had amounted to a mandate to turn down all proposals but those advocated by Mr. Hoover during the campaign as interpretative of the Republican platform.

Montana's two Democratic senators, Walsh and Wheeler, declared there was no question but that the debenture plan would provide immediate financial relief for the farmer. Wheeler went further to declare that without the debenture section no genuine relief would be afforded.

Oil Magnate's Friends Circulate Pardon Plea

Wichita, Kans., May 7 (U.P.).—Friends of Harry Sinclair in his native State of Kansas today started a move to obtain a pardon for the oil millionaire, who entered jail Monday night at Washington to serve three months for contempt of the Senate.

A petition was circulated at Independence asking President Hoover to free Sinclair. The group which framed the petition said it would be circulated here and in other Kansas cities before being presented to the President.

GRAIN RATE CUT CAUSED BY HOOVER

the Mississippi River, and from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago.

The cut from the Missouri River to the Gulf is 11½ cents, and from St. Louis to New Orleans, 5½ cents.

All Western trunk lines are participating in the reductions.

The committee later said it wished to make it plain that the reductions were for wheat and wheat flour only and not on related articles.

Board Meets Tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

A conference of representatives of all interests affected by the proposed voluntary reduction in railroad rates on export grain has been called by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be held in Washington beginning tomorrow morning.

Though railroad announcements have indicated intent to reduce all export grain rates east of Chicago and St. Louis, the commission notice said that applications for authority to publish such reductions on short notice had actually been received only from Eastern trunk lines and would affect solely the charges for grain export from Buffalo and other lake ports to the seaboard.

"Numerous protests have been received from operators of vessels on the New York Barge Canal," the commission stated, "and from officials of the New York State to the effect that the establishment of the reduced rates by rail will create ruinous competition for vessels on the canal. The application proposes no change in the rates on grain products. The rates on the latter are now higher than grain."

Protests Being Received.

"Numerous protests," the commission continued, "have been received against permitting any reduction on grain without like reductions on grain products, it being contended that undue prejudice and preference would result therefrom. In the past there appears to have been a more or less recognized relationship between the ex-lake rates from lake ports and the all-rail rates from inland grain markets, such as Chicago, St. Louis, Peoria and Kansas City, to the North Atlantic ports and to gulf ports.

"Protests have been received against making effective reductions in the ex-lake rates without corresponding reductions in other competitive rates on grain and grain products.

"An informal conference between representatives of the commission and interested parties will be held in its offices in Washington at 10:30 a. m. Thursday, May 9. All parties having an interest in the situation are invited to be present and present views."

Rates Lowered in East.

Eastern railroads, following a session of their traffic executives in Washington last Friday, announced that there was a national emergency presented by existing large stocks of grain in the West which have failed to go into world consumption to the normal degree following the 1928 harvest and that in view of proposals made by the Government, the carriers would make a voluntary reduction, limited in duration to September 29 next, to facilitate the movement of the stored grain. Traffic executives of Western lines, who reached Washington Saturday, were also asked to reduce the export rates to the Western primary markets, such as Chicago and St. Louis, by an amount equal to the reductions given on the movement east of those points. Eastern roads announced that they would in addition cut the rates from Buffalo and other lake ports to the seaboard by 2 cents per bushel.

Western road executives gathered at Chicago again yesterday to discuss the proposals, and especially to consider the demand for the inclusion of export flour in the rate reductions. Eastern lines were also understood to be considering a revision of their original program to include flour reduction proportionate to the grain reduction announced. The summoning of the conference was the first step taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission touching the situation.

HOOVER SEES HOPE FOR ARMS CUTTING

He Says Results Achieved at Geneva Will Be Followed Up Promptly.

MOVEMENT IS ENLIVENED

American delegation, which include the conception of reduction instead of limitation of naval strength. They have expressed their desire for full and frank discussion and the development of the American formula into a practical step. The manner by which these discussions are to be initiated has not yet been determined, but the question will be followed up promptly."

Tonic for Reduction Hopes.

The President's statement admittedly comes at the right moment to provide a sorely-needed and highly beneficial tonic for the naval arms reduction program, which remains in somewhat indefinite shape, but nevertheless represents an ideal which all of the powers claim to desire to see ultimately realized. With the adjournment of the Geneva meeting without accomplishment and without even studying the American formula which Ambassador Gibson proposed, there was danger of this last session being regarded as a setback. Critical comment has already appeared in the European press and the final session on Monday brought dissenting viewes over the failure to discuss the American formula, instead of the usual expressions of hope and harmony which are presumed to conclude conferences of this sort.

Ambassador Gibson had explained that he had been ready to discuss the American proposal, but that this readiness was contingent upon the willingness of other delegations to welcome such discussion. In other words, the responsibility for not discussing the American formula did not rest on the shoulders of the United States. Mr. Gibson clearly indicated.

This brought Lord Cushendun, the British delegate, to his feet with a reply to Mr. Gibson which sought to shift the responsibility back onto American shoulders for the failure to discuss the American formula.

Too Late for Discussion.

"Mr. Gibson's earlier statement did not involve and did not express any precise proposals for dealing with the naval question," Lord Cushenden retorted. "He intimated that proposals may be forthcoming from the United States Government if they were welcomed or sought for, which they have been. We haven't seen the proposals yet, but I have no doubt they will be communicated to the different governments by the United States."

At this stage of the proceedings it was too late for Mr. Gibson to bring his proposals up for discussion. On previous occasions when there would have been opportunity to discuss them the British, Japanese and others desired their presentation to be postponed. So the conference adjourned without forcing Great Britain, Japan or any other country to go on record one way or the other, which was precisely the situation which Lord Cushendun desired to bring about.

The American proposals were indorsed "in principle," which is the usual diplomatic way of avoiding any pointed discussion of a definite or concrete proposition, unless or until the powers have had an opportunity to examine it in secret and decide how best to cope with it from the standpoint of their own interests. In the present case, acceptance "in principle" means that the powers accept the idea of dealing with naval reductions by reducing—provided, off course, that such reducing suits their own purposes and ends.

President Fills Gap.

It was expected that the last session of the conference would be featured by expressions of hope and by suitable references to the fine spirit of cooperation shown. But this feature has been somewhat lacking in this case. The statement of President Hoover supplies what was obviously needed to keep hope buoyed up and to encourage continuance of effort for the future.

The American formula for evaluating naval strength will now presumably be communicated to the interested powers, and there is no reason why it should not be considered along with the other formulas which the British and others say they have had under consideration. Exchanges between the governments or the naming of a subcommittee at a future date or a meeting of naval experts, representing each of the naval powers, all loom as possibilities.

President Hoover's statement that "the matter will be followed up promptly" precludes any intimation from European quarters that America is not interested or that the cause of naval disarmament has been hurt by the attitude of the United States.

Michigan Cigarette Tax Bill Signed by Governor

Lansing, Mich., May 7 (A.P.).—A bill placing a tax on cigarettes sold in Michigan was signed by Gov. Fred W. Green today. The levy is one cent on each ten cigarettes.

Stamps will be sold by the department of state and must be affixed by the distributor or dealer. It is estimated the tax will yield more than $1,500,000 a year and is designed to provide funds, without taxing property, for the poorer school districts of the State.

BERLIN POLICE RAID ON REDS CRITICIZED

Inquiry Shows Communists Were Killed, but None Fired in Return.

MERCHANTS FILE CLAIMS

Berlin, May 7 (A.P.).—Bitter controversies continue in the Berlin press and among the public as to the part played by the police in suppressing the Communist riots which broke out on May Day.

Post-mortem examinations of the 24 victims of the riot are said to have revealed that 17 had been killed by police bullets.

The official inquiry has been unable to establish that a single shot had been fired by a civilian against the police. Only one policeman of the 40-odd injured had received a bullet wound, and that wound he had accidentally inflicted upon himself.

One hundred and fifty shopkeepers of the Wedding district, where rioting was said to have been very severe, declared today that the streets were quite safe from Communist excesses and that a simple police patrol would have sufficed.

These shopkeepers, who do not profess Communist principles but have combined to claim compensation for damages suffered by loss of trade during the rioting, stated that no civilians had been seen to shoot at police.

Meanwhile, 45 persons of 117 arrested had been sentenced to short terms of imprisonment for breaking the peace. The rest were released for want of evidence.

The government order for suppression of the red militant organization is being generally carried out except in the little former Duchy of Anhalt, where the Diet was told by the Anhalt government that the order would be disregarded. No disturbances whatever had occurred there and the Anhalt authorities saw no reason to interfere.

The government of Saxony has followed the lead of Prussia and Bavaria in forcibly suppressing these organizations.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Office workers of the financial district clashed today with factory workers who staged a demonstration in front of the German Consulate in connection with the May Day riots in Berlin.

More than a score of the factory folk, who said they were communists, marched with placards from Whitehall street and Battery place to the consulate in the latter street. They were led by Viola Hampton, striking textile worker from Gastonia, N. C., who carried a sign reading, "Southern textile workers declare solidarity with German workers."

The demonstration was at the noon hour and a crowd of office workers estimated at about 500 watched for a few minutes and then broke up the gathering, tearing up the placards and scattering the paraders. Police were called to restore order.

Kathleen Norris Sued By Boys in Auto Crash

San Francisco, Calif., May 7 (A.P.).—Damage suits totaling $80,000 were filed here today against Kathleen Norris, novelist, her husband, Charles G. Norris, Mrs. Lillian Kolster, wife of the radio manufacturer, and James Benet, for injuries allegedly sustained by two Palo Alto youths in an automobile collision here last March.

The boys, Robert Ethen, 14, and Joseph Ward, 15, were passengers in a car owned by Mrs. Norris and driven by Benet when it collided with one in which Kolster and his wife were riding.

Coolidge to Discard "Official Spokesman"

New York, May 7 (U.P.).—The "official spokesman" intermediary employed by Calvin Coolidge during the years he was President, and retained since his retirement, in the few public statements he has made, will be discarded tomorrow after he is formally elected a member of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Co.

It was announced at the company offices tonight that Coolidge would have a few words for the press following his election and that they would be submitted as direct statements. The former President is to attend a luncheon to be given for him by the board at noon tomorrow.

Farmer Says Children Rode His Hogs to Death

Frankfort, Ky., May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Charging that Edgar Baker, 5 years old, and Harry Baker, 7 years old, rode his hogs to death, John Page, a Franklin County farmer, had the two children arrested and arraigned before County Judge Polsgrove.

The jurist, however, dismissed the children on the grounds that he had no authority to try babies. It was also brought out that the hogs died of a disease.

Helen Wills Plans Display Of 40 of Her Color Sketches

Art Work of Tennis Star Will Be Exhibited June 19 in Cooling Gallery; to Wear Plume Straight at Court Tomorrow.

London, May 7 (U.P.).—Helen Wills, thrilled by plans for her presentation at Buckingham Palace court Thursday and busy preparing for some important tennis matches later this month, found time to give attention to art today.

Discarding the roles of debutante and tennis star, the California girl took 40 of her water color sketches to the Cooling Art Gallery in Bond street this morning. The sketches will be shown to the public for the first time June 19.

Miss Wills carried her sketches in a big folder under her arm, turning them over to J. H. Cooling, who will take charge of them until the exhibition opens.

She talked with Cooling for an hour making arrangements for hanging the pictures, which not even the employes of the gallery are permitted to see.

There will be a showing of the sketches for press representatives June 17 and a private viewing for a number of notables June 18. The public exhibition will be open for three weeks.

Miss Wills said she had passed up offers of a number of society matrons to teach her the court ceremony and was being instructed by friends. She will—as will the others to be presented to Queen Mary—wear her plume straight on her head, as the queen was annoyed last year by the cocky angle at which some of the debutantes wore their headgear.

NAVY BALLOON HELD ELIMINATION WINNER

BECOME LOST IN WOODS

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 7 (A.P.).—The Navy balloon, No. 1, tonight was credited with winning the 1929 national elimination balloon race. The crew of the Detroit Times entry, last of the bags to report, advised race headquarters late today that they had landed near Newcomb, N. Y., and that all was well despite discomforts experienced in landing in an isolated district. E. J. Hill piloted the Times entry and Arthur Schlosser was his aid.

The flights of the twelve race entries must be checked by the National Aeronautical Association before the winner is declared officially. The Navy, No. 1, piloted by Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, came down near Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, traveling a distance estimated unofficially at 900 miles. The bag was in the air 44 hours.

Nearly three days had elapsed since the twelve balloons left here late Saturday before the Detroit Times entry was found. The distance covered by the craft was estimated at approximately that traveled by the Goodyear VII, piloted by Ward T. Van Orman The Goodyear VII came down at Keeseville, N. Y., a distance of approximately 405 miles from Pittsburgh.

First and second place winners in the national race are entitled to compete in the International balloon race. The United States will have a third entry in the international this year, Capt. W. E. Kepner, of the Army, being the defender. He won both the national and international in 1928.

Missing Airmen Appear.

Newcomb, N. Y., May 7 (A.P.).—Two aeronauts, occupants of the missing balloon entered by the Detroit Times in the National elimination balloon race, came from the woods today into this Adirondack mountain village three days after they disappeared into the air above Pittsburgh.

The balloonists, E. J. Hill and Arthur G. Schlosser, brought with them from the woods a story of a two-day fight against dense forest, cold and partial starvation. They landed near Moose Pond, 15 miles northwest of here, two hours after daybreak Sunday They had drifted approximately 380 miles.

Schlosser related his experience to the Asscaited Press a few hours after he and Hill emerged from the woods and hailed workers on the State highway near Newcomb. His account follows:

"We landed Sunday morning at 7:15 o'clock in a heavy rain.

Descended Near Lakes.

"The balloon came down out of the clouds so fast that we had little chance to see the lay of the land under us. We did not notice the country was heavily wooded, however, so we threw overboard our food and some equipment, hoping to get out of that section and into open country. We were unable to rise again, however, and landed near a lake (Moose Pond). We decided a lake the size of that one must have a habitation of some kind, so we inflated a collapsible boat which we carried in the balloon and rowed around the lake; we found no sign of a house and went back to the balloon.

"We were pretty much discouraged—soaked to the skin, the weather cold and no food. We built a fire and dried our clothes as much as possible. We stayed near the balloon and the fire Sunday night.

"Monday morning we started out, intending to get to a habitation but with no idea of direction. We pushed through the woods for some hours, getting hungrier all the time. Finally we climbed a mountain to make an observation. Way off to the southwest we could see signs of habitation We started off in that direction, but could not make it before dark, so we built another fire and camped out again, finishing the trip today.

Wet Clothes Were Frozen.

"It was stormy all the way from Pittsburgh, with the temperature about 16 degrees above zero. When we went down to the lower altitudes our clothing was soaked with rain and snow and when we went up the clothes froze stiff

"At 11:30 Saturday night we were about 60 miles east of Pittsburgh and figured we were being carried eastward toward the ocean. Here the rain was accompanied by lightning and to avoid this hazard and the eastward drift, we ascended to 10,000 feet. At 4 a. m Sunday we came down a little and got a glimpse of the ground, but the clouds closed in and shut off this view. The next time we saw ground was when we came down up here."

The balloonists intended trying to go back to their craft tonight to study the best method of bringing it from the woods tomorrow. The men carried a motion picture camera with them when they left the balloon but its weight interferred with their progress and they abandoned it.

Near Mile-High Barrier.

The balloon landed in a vast wooded valley. From the highway here the valley slopes easily to the north for 20 miles, where it ends against the rampart of the Adirondacks' highest range. There three peaks, Marcy, Macintire and Hanonini, thrust a mile-high barrier across what would have been the path of the balloon had it continued its drift. The floor of the valley is covered mainly with spruce and balsam, while "hogback" hills extending out into it are masses of burned land with windfall, offering almost insurmountable obstacles to the traveler.

A few miles east of the spot where the balloonists left the woods is the settlement of Aiden Lair, where the then vice president Theodore Roosevelt received the oath of office upon the death of President McKinley. Roosevelt, on a vacation, was informed of McKinley's impending death from an assassin's bullet and started a dash from the woods. He was met by a party at Aiden Lair with news of the President's death and promptly was inducted into office at that roadside stop.

2 Boys Disappear; Start Kidnap Scare

One Philadelphia Lad, 6, Returns; Another One Still Sought.

Philadelphia, May 7 (U.P.).—The mysterious disappearance of two small children within the last 36 hours threw Philadelphia parents into fear today that a kidnaping ring was operating on the North Side.

Anxiety was diminished partly tonight, however, when it was learned that Leo Murtha, 6, who was taken from his bed last night, had been returned. Police decline to say how or where he was found. Authorities still are searching for 4-year-old Charles Thompson, who strayed away from his playmates yesterday morning. They said, however, that the boy had disappeared on previous occasions.

The case was that of Curtis Van Pel, clerk in the drug store of F. W. Keer & Co., Port Richmond, accused of selling a pint of alcohol to a policeman.

Big Wave Blamed In Vestris Sinking

Third Officer Welland Tells London Court of Ship's Trouble in Storm.

London, May 7 (A.P.).—Stormy weather and inflow of water from an unknown source were suggested today as probable contributory causes in the sinking of the liner Vestris last November by witnesses before the Board of Trade Court inquiry.

Third Officer Welland expressed the belief that the pressure of wind on her quarter prevented the vessel from keeping her course. He described the tumultuous seas then running and particularly one great wave which caused the Vestris to lurch heavily.

The ship never recovered from this blow, he said, it displaced lifeboats, smashed the lee rails and hurled some of the motor cars in the cargo through a bulkhead. Capt. Carey, drowned master of the ship, had sent him to seek the source of the inflowing water. Welland was unable to get down through the hatches, but heard no sound of water in the holds.

3 REPORTS SIGNED ON MELLON STATUS

Norris and Borah Sponsors of Minority Opinions; Others Issue Statements.

NEW EVIDENCE IS FILED

(Associated Press.)

Three reports from the Senate judiciary committee and as many individual statements by committee members on the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office were submitted to the Senate yesterday and will be considered after passage of the farm relief bill.

The majority report, presented by Senator Steiwer (Republican), of Oregon, held that Mr. Mellon's stockholdings did not conflict with the old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in carrying on trade. Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, author of the resolution of inquiry into the Secretary's status, announced he would ask adoption of the minority report, declaring Mr. Mellon ineligible to serve. This was presented by Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska.

After Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, submitted another report, and three members had advanced individual statements, Senator Edge (Republican), of New Jersey, arose to inquire "where does this leave the struggling layman?"

New Evidence Introduced.

New evidence as to Mr. Mellon's commercial interests was submitted by Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, in one of the statements. He also signed the minority report of Senator Norris declaring the Secretary ineligible.

Senator Walsh presented depositions in old lawsuits purporting to show that John W. Weeks, former Secretary of War, had given an option to Mr. Mellon from the Standard Pressed Steel Car Co. for the sale of cars belonging to the Government. The Montanan also placed before the Senate, without comment, the deposition of Mr. Mellon in another lawsuit, showing that he was consulted over a transaction of the Aluminum Co. of America and went to Canada in 1925 in his interest as a stockholder in connection with that transaction.

He likewise submitted a report showing that the Gulf Refining Co., in which Mr. Mellon is a stockholder, was awarded a contract last summer to supply the Shipping Board emergency fleet corporation with fuel oil.

Interest in Ships Is Cited.

The Norris report held that holding of "substantial" amounts of stock disqualified a man from serving as Secretary of the Treasury and that ownership of sea vessels by some of the Mellon companies rendered him ineligible. Senators Walsh, Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, and Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, signed this report.

The Borah report held that stock ownership was not in violation of the law, but that any activity, direct or indirect, by a Secretary of the Treasury in his companies, would be a violation of the law. Senators King (Utah), and Dill (Washington), Democrats, signed this report.

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, who signed no reports, submitted a statement quoting Senator Norris as declaring that any inquiry by the Senate into Mr. Mellon was entirely outside the jurisdiction of the Senate. Senator Norris replied that he still held that view, but that he was acting in response to an order from the Senate.

Senator Blaine also submitted an individual statement, in which he suggested that President Hoover has the power to direct the Attorney General to bring action against Mr. Mellon for violation of the law.

CANADIAN WATERS GIVE UP GIRL'S BODY

morning of March 21 at 9 o'clock. The girl, of unusual appearance, with bright red-gold hair, and exceptionally well built, weighing 140 pounds, walked down the campus and was never seen alive again.

She was believed to have been kidnaped by a "vice ring," and $5,000 was offered by her uncle, Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal, for her return to her parents alive. McGill students and Boy Scouts searched the mountain, and private detective agencies followed clews that led all over the continent, but without success.

Employes of the power company saw the body floating in the swollen river today and in bringing it ashore came across the body of a young man in the same backwash. Evidently the high water had loosened the girl's body from where it had been caught on the rocky bottom of the river for seven weeks.

The man's body had only been in the water two or three days. Identification of Miss Pitcher was made by the family chauffeur, Conley, who drove her daily to her studies, by a radium scar over the eyebrow which was the result of an operation for a growth, and by her clothing. The fact that she was fully dressed, even to rubbers, was said to indicate that the girl had a mental breakdown and wandered across the island and on to the soft ice in the river and drowned. Its appearance refutes any idea of foul play, the authorities who examined the body state.

Three reports were submitted on the question of Secretary Mellon's right to continue in office. The majority report, approved by nine of the seventeen members, held that he was legally entitled to continue in office.

Chairman La Follette called a meeting of the manufacturers committee for today to consider the Wheeler resolution for an investigation of working conditions in the Southern textile industry.

Banking committee approved the nomination of Horace Paul Beator, of St. Louis, to be a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

Senator Vandenberg, (Republican), Michigan, introduced a bill to provide for the marking of graves in national and State cemeteries of widows of soldiers, sailors and marines of all wars.

HOUSE.

Majority Leader Tilson said the bill was the result of compromise and represented the composite best judgment of fifteen members of the committee.

SWEEPSTAKES LAID UNDER SCOTCH BAN

Stock Exchange Members There Are Warned They Face Prosecution.

BRITISH ATTITUDE VARIES

London, May 7, (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Derby sweepstakes have been declared illegal in Scotland, it became known today, and the public prosector's office there has already told every member of Scotland's Stock Exchange committee that their sweep is illegal and that they are liable to prosecution.

This decision in Scotland was totally unexpected after Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks told the House of Commons last Thursday that the police would not interfere with private or semiprivate lotteries, the tickets in which were only sold to or through the members of recognized societies or institutions.

The police today, nevertheless, stopped the Barking Hospital committee Derby sweep, ordering the return of all books of tickets and the refunding of money to purchasers.

The ban on Scottish sweeps will probably affect a total of $500,000. The Glasgow Stock Exchange sweep alone was expected to take in $100,000, 14,000 $5 tickets already having been sold.

Sir William's favorable decision here regarding sweepstakes does not affect Scotland where the final decision regarding the matter rests in the hands of Sir John Gillmour, secretary of state for Scotland.

Though the laws of both England and Scotland forbid lotteries, the interpretation and administration of that law is not necessarily the same in each, and the decision of the authorities of either one does not commit the authorities of the other.

It is believed that the action taken in Glasgow was due to the protests of local ministers and an antigambling league which has its headquarters there.

Meanwhile, however, no fear is felt here regarding the safety of the $5,000,000 London Stock Exchange sweeps, the drawings in which will probably be held next week.

Hoover Sends Hughes' Nomination to Senate

(Associated Press.)

The nomination of Charles Evans Hughes, jr., to be Solicitor General of the United States was formally transmitted to the Senate yesterday by President Hoover.

Announcement of the appointment was made Monday. The name of Mr. Hughes had been submitted to President Hoover, together with several others, by the New York patronage committee created by the Chief Executive

DIRIGIBLE MAIL LINE TO HAWAII PLANNED

Keys, president of the Transcontinental Air Transport "Lindbergh Line," the second representing the Aviation Corporation, $200,000,000 holding corporation which embodies half a dozen leading air line operators and aircraft manufacturers.

Negotiations at present are only in the "conversation" stage, according to a spokesman for the New York interests. The entire scheme, he said, hinges upon the administration's enthusiasm, or lack of it, for the undertaking, as evinced by mail contracts and other "cooperation and encouragement."

It was made clear, however, that if this support, accorded most recently to Pan-American Airways in establishing its network of air lines from Miami to Nassau, the West Indies, Central and South America, is forthcoming from the Postoffice, Commerce and War Departments, the promoters stand ready to go ahead.

The tentative arrangements call for construction of two superdirigibles of 6,500,000 cubic feet capacity each, which would be commercial sisters of the two military air giants now being built at Akron for the Navy.

It is believed that these ships would be ready for service within three years without in any way conflicting with production of the Navy's dirigibles. In fact, their construction, in many ways, would hasten completion of the other two airships, as much of the work would be speeded by mass production methods.

The contemplated ships would have accommodations for 60 to 100 passengers and cargo space for 10,000 to 20,000 pounds of mail, express and baggage. Refinements of design and increase of power plane efficiency are expected to bring their speed to nearly 100 miles an hour, so that the present long travel schedules across the Pacific would be vastly reduced.

No estimate of the cost of the two ships was given, because special furnishings, required for passenger comfort, would necessarily make this fairly high, but an approximate idea may be had from the fact that the Navy is paying $8,000,000 for its two Goodyear-Zeppelin superdirigibles of the same size.

The California-Hawaii route was picked for "the first commercial lighter-than-air transportation system," the informant said, because of generally ideal weather conditions to be found there. It is, however, looked upon as only the "first leg" or "experimental run" in a great system of airship lines which, in time, would link all the important population and industrial centers of the globe.

It is conceded that the mail and passenger traffic to Hawaii alone probably would not warrant such a service, but a rich field is foreseen when it can be extended to cover and outstrip the slow trade routes that now cross the Pacific to the Orient.

Transatlantic mail and passenger service by dirigibles would be the final field of operations, according to present plans, because this ocean presents the greatest weather hazards. The informant added that the venture, if it is undertaken at all, will be "All-American" in more than the usual sense of using American capital and American-built ships because "it will not be undertaken by any group or groups in American aviation; every air line in the country will be asked to come in and cooperate as will the railroad and steamship transportation systems of the country."

An idea of the size of the ships to be used on the California-Hawaii run may be had from the fact that the Los Angeles has a gas capacity of 2,472,000 cubic feet, the Graf Zeppelin 3,700,000, the R-100 (now nearing completion in England), 5,000,000 and the projected Navy and commercial Goodyear-Zeppelins 6,500,000 cubic feet.

Brookhart Bill Curbs Film-Booking Methods

(Associated Press.)

Drastic regulation of motion picture bookings was proposed in a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa.

Altered in some respects from a similar measure he sponsored previously, Brookhart said the bill was designed to "outlaw blind booking, block booking and arbitrary allocation of films," and to give the small theater owner the right of choosing what pictures to buy. It would make unlawful "unfair and oppressive measures employed by the great producers and distributors in their competitive warfare against independent producers."

13 TEXTILE STRIKERS TURNED FROM HOMES

North Carolina Mill Families Are Evicted; Furnishings Placed in Street.

NO RESISTANCE OFFERED

Gastonia, N. C., May 7 (U.P.).—Striking members of the National Textile Workers Union were facing a new and pressing problem tonight, as police deputies began carrying out eviction orders issued today against 62 families formerly employed by the Manville-Jenckes Co.

The deputies began their dreary task at 2 o'clock this afternoon. As the chill of nightfall crept over the town, they had entered thirteen of the mill shacks, dragging the humble furnishings and cherished possessions out into the street.

The mill people, although reduced to a condition approaching absolute poverty by the five-weeks' strike, offered no resistance to the officers. In most cases they stood by passively while their homes were emptied.

Some, however, spoke bitter words, while a few of the women wept as they watched their belongings dumped into the gutter in front of the place where had been home.

For two families the eviction was a grave matter. Illness failed to stay the hand of the officers, although the order provides for special consideration of those families thus afflicted.

The families of Henry Tetherow and J. A. Valentine were evicted, strikers said, contrary to orders of Magistrate Bismarck Capps, who signed the eviction writ. Valentine's 4-year-old daughter was said to be seriously ill with smallpox, against which this State had no quarantine laws.

PORTES GIL OFFERS TO DISCUSS CHURCH

ment and the Catholic Church, especially since the decree affecting religious worship issued by former President Plutarco Elias Calles in 1926.

This decree made it necessary for the clergy to be of Mexican birth in order to "exercise within the republic the ministry of whatever cult."

The decree also forbade the clergy to establish or direct schools of primary instruction; forbade monastic orders of any denomination; confined worship strictly to within the walls of churches; prohibited church ownership of real estate (making churches the property of the nation).

Regarded as Overture.

Calles defended his action by saying that the government merely was upholding the civil rights of the people and asserted that the laws did not limit religious teaching within the church. The church, however, asserted that religious liberty and tolerance had been denied to the people.

Observers at the capital regarded the president's statement, despite its careful wording, as indicating the administration's readiness to enter into discussions with the church. Hitherto, all attempts to initiate these conversations have failed although the strongest pressure has been brought to bear on both the church and government. United States Ambassador Morrow a year ago unofficially exerted strenuous efforts without result.

It had been generally hoped throughout the country that some move to make a settlement would follow the ending of the rebellion. However Portes Gil's statement was totally unexpected, as it had been thought the government would wait several months before making its views public.

Mr. Tucker, who represents the Tenth Virginia district, was one of the Democrats who was reelected last November. About the only business transacted by the committees here today was the decision to select candidates for city and county offices under the primary plan.

BANK CLAIMS PART OF REBELS' MONEY

Ateca's Case Is Taken Up by New York Grand Jury on Conspiracy Charge.

BAIL IS STILL REFUSED

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—The Federal grand jury that will sit during the morning hours of this month was convened today and at once began investigation of charges of a conspiracy to effect the departure to Europe of a fugitive rebel from Mexico.

The alleged fugitive is Salvador Ateca, former rebel paymaster and gambling concessionaire, who was arrested in possession of a black bag containing about $750,000 which, Mexican officials charged, was looted from Mexican banks and the treasury of the state of Chihuahua.

With Ateca were arrested his secretary, Antonio Maquero; Russell Mathews, assistant director of immigration for the El Paso (Tex.) district, and W. H. Fryer, former assistant United States attorney at El Paso.

Ateca and Maquero are held without bail. Mathews and Fryer are at liberty under bail of $2,500 each. Mathews was in Washington today conferring with officials of the Labor Department, which, he asserted on his arrest, had ordered him to accompany Ateca from Texas to New York to see that he got out of the country. Fryer said he accompanied Ateca as his counsel.

The charges against the defendants were explained to the grand jurors by Assistant United States Attorney George Mintzer, who led the raid that resulted in the arrest. He was followed by Enos Throop Geer, of counsel for the Banco de la Languna, of Torreon, Mexico.

After he had testified before the grand jury, Geer said that about $160,000 in the black bag belonged to the bank or represented property seized by Jose Gonzalo Escobar, former rebel generalissimo, before evacuating Torreon, where the bank is located.

Among documents seized in the raid by Mintzer and a score of detectives and secret service operatives were memoranda showing communication between Ateca and Escobar and a payroll covering $300,000 due soldiers in Escobar's army.

Ateca and Maquero were arrested recently in Kansas City on a charge lhid against them in El Paso that they had violated the neutrality laws by shipping munitions of war by airplane to the rebels from this side of the border. They were released on bail of $5,000 each and rearrested when they came here, intending to take ship for Spain.

Counsel for the defendants made an unsuccessful effort to obtain release in bail of Ateca and Maquero late today. A United States commissioner expressing doubt of his authority to set bail. The lawyer announced his intention to ask for a writ of habeas corpus.

Defense counsel said that if the Federal attorney would consent to Ateca's return to El Paso at once he would see that his clients returned to the border city for an early hearing.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle replied that he would be willing to drop all action here if an indictment was returned in Texas, but that there would be no grand jury sitting in the El Paso district until October.

Father Kills 2 Girls, Self In Protest of Divorce Law

Brooklyn Man Leaves Note After Poisoning, Decrying Inability to Rid Himself of Faithless Wife; Other Woman May Also Have Been Slain.

explained. "The aggravation of it made me nervous, miserable and quick tempered and, being so, I was frequently out of work. Also I would say things to Sue which would hurt her and finally she left us, but God knows, I love her more than life itself. I have tried to get her to come back to us, but have not succeeded, so I decided to end it all for the four of us, and if there is a hereafter, we may be together once again."

Having made that decision Von Buhren, the police learned, rented an automobile from a renting agency. It was when he did not return the car that the first suspicion was aroused that something was wrong. Every day for several days the renting agency sent a representative to Von Buhren's apartment, but always he reported no one was at home. Today police were called. With the renting company's agent they visited the apartment, made their way in and found Von Buhren and the two children dead from poison. They had been dead 24 hours or more.

On the kitchen table were two notes. One contained the explanation of the poisonings and the protest against the divorce laws, which Von Buhren blamed for his plight. The other gave instructions for the burial of the bodies. Both were explicit in assuming all blame by Von Buhren, even going so far as to say that the poison was purchased under false pretenses, thus exonerating the druggist.

There remained tonight the one element of mystery, the matter of the whereabouts of "Susan." She had not been found by police, nor has the car which Von Buhren rented from the automobile agency. Police began a search for both the woman and the car, with openly expressed fears that if the car is found "Susan" may also be discovered near it, dead.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 7 (U.P.).—George Von Buhren made his protest today against the stringent divorce laws of New York.

His protest took the form of the poisoning of his two daughters and himself, and, police feared tonight, may have included the killing of a woman with whom he was infatuated.

"I may state here," read a note which Von Buhren left on the kitchen table of his little apartment, "that if the divorce laws of this State were different this may not have happened.

"Why a man must remain married to a confessed unfaithful wife with no recourse to a court of law is beyond me."

Therein rested the key to the Von Buhren tradedy.

Von Buhren, a workman of small means and whose possessions largely were derived from the estate of his deceased mother, had suspected his wife of unfaithfulness. Finally they separated. But he had been unable to prove in court that she had been unfaithful and the laws of New York recognized no grounds for divorce except specific, proved infidelity.

After the two separated, Georgetta, aged 9, and Marie, aged 12, their children had remained with the father. As time went on he joined another woman in a romantic association. But he could not marry her, for he had no divorce.

"It is true that Susan (the woman with whom he was infatuated) and I were not married for that reason," his note written in contemplation of death

BRITISH RAISE ISSUE ON NEW DEBT PLANS

Oppose Reducing Their Percentage in Division of Reparations.

CITE PROFIT TO OTHERS

Paris, May 7 (A.P.).—Private conversations between the heads of the different expert delegations today developed nothing new in the reparation settlement negotiations except that the British are now indisposed toward the plan suggested by Owen D. Young because it changes the percentages under which it was decided at the original Spa meeting to divide the reparations receipts among the creditors.

Mr. Young, when he made a new set of annuities in an effort to bring about an agreement, took as the basis of his work the creditors' memorandum which comprised a table of percentages of the partition of annuities among the creditors. As he changed the annuities, he made certain changes in the percentages, not in the spirit of laying down the law to the allies as to their own affairs, but simply as a suggestion that would help toward an accord.

Mr. Young prepared a supplementary memorandum on that question today and the document was distributed to the experts tonight. It appears that the British took strong exception to a change in the British share of 22 per cent allotted to Great Britain at the Spa meeting.

Insist on Percentage.

It was said in British circles tonight that the British still approved the Young plan but that unless their percentage were restored they would sign the report with reservations on that point.

The supplementary memorandum issued by Mr. Young suggested that the creditors fix their own percentages to fit the proposed annuities, if they should prefer to follow this course.

The American delegation throughout was understood to have made every effort to avoid anything that looked like dominating the conference and Mr. Young has made clear that his new percentages were put in as a simple suggestion based on the creditors' memorandum.

The British intimate that what was taken from Great Britain was mostly given to the French in Mr. Young's scheme with a few smaller bits added to Belgium and Italy.

When they first adhered to the Young plan, the British stated that their acceptance would be on condition that there would be no change in the Spa percentages. They apparently have decided to fight the question out along that line.

No Objections Heard.

Meanwhile there have been no official objections voiced to the German acceptance conditions, but France and Belgium have yet to be heard from.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, failed to come forward today with a detailed text for the conditions upon which he was ready to accept Mr. Young's proposal. There is considerable difference of opinion as to what they are and to what extent they may affect the chances for an agreement. There is a growing disposition, however, in expert circles to minimize that phase of the question and to insist that Mr. Young's figures give the best and probably the last opportunity for the experts to reach a settlement.

There has been a notable change in tone on the part of the French press concerning Mr. Young's proposal. Careful computation seems to have convinced financial writers that his plan would give France something like 43,000,000,000 francs (approximately $1,720,000,000) for the purpose of reducing her internal debt.

The debt situation is still surrounded with confusion and uncertainty, however, because the Germans are withholding their conditions.

Statement Promised Today.

Statement of these is promised for tomorrow and the questions of failure or success for the conference may take definite shape before tomorrow night.

The experts seem evenly divided between optimism and pessimism. In any case, Sir Josiah Stamp, of the British delegation, is going ahead with preparations of a new report which will be ready for signature before Saturday if an agreement is reached.

The original report was drafted for a double conclusion, with majority and minority sections. Chances of agreement are thought to be sufficient to justify drafting a unified report which all delegations can sign.

The American experts hope to be able to sail for home Saturday.

Wife Charges Husband Is Drug Addict; Sues

Declaring Norman C. Howe is addicted to narcotics and subject to violent fits of temper when unable to obtain drugs, Mrs. Agnes Howe, of 820 Shepherd street northwest, instituted suit for maintenance yesterday and petitioned the District Supreme Court to restrain her husband from molesting her and their children.

The parties were married March 29 1914, according to the complaint, and have three children. Since 1919, the wife declared, Howe has refused to obtain steady employment and she has been forced to take in boarders and work as a dressmaker's helper to provide for her family. She declared she had her husband arrested and sent to jail on one occasion and that he is on probation in the Juvenile Court for nonsupport.

Grant Asks Court Halt On Patterson Payment

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, has requested the District Supreme Court to withhold confirmation of the condemnation jury's award of $400,000 for the Patterson tract, it was announced yesterday.

Col Grant described the amount as excessive. The assessed value of the property, he explained, is $274,266. With the additional 25 per cent of the assessed value that Congress has allowed for the purchase of property for public use, the price would be $342,833.

She and her brother, James O'Mara, who was convicted with her, are at liberty on a $500 bond pending sentence. Both may be sent to the industrial farm at Lansing.

SMOOT'S DAUGHTER WINS QUICK DECREE

Mrs. Nibley Files Suit in the Morning and Gains Divorce Two Hours Later.

IS GIVEN RAIL FARE HERE

Long Beach, Calif., May 7 (A.P.).—In the quickest divorce action in the history of Los Angeles County courts, Mrs. Zella Smoot Nibley, daughter of United States Senator Reed Smoot, today was divorced from Carlyle Nibley, local automobile dealer.

The complaint, based on mental cruelty, was filed at 10 o'clock. Two hours later the case was called for trial in a special session before Superior Judge Percy Hight, and the divorce granted.

Although Nibley's answer was attached to the complaint, Nibley did not appear to contest the suit, which went by default. Mrs. Nibley was granted custody of three minor children and through a property settlement made out of court she was awarded $5,000 cash and $350 a month alimony until the children become of age. A further stipulation provided for transportation of Mrs. Nibley and her tthree children from Longbeach to Washington, D. C.

The couple was married in Salt Lake City October 4, 1920, the complaint recited, and separted at Longbeach two months ago.

Market Fiasco Put Up to City Heads

Superintendent's Report Is Simple Statement; Calls Fund Inadequate.

What is to be done about the proposed farmer's produce market, construction of which was authorized in the southwest section of the city, was put up to the District Commissioners yesterday in the annual estimates of William A. Roberts, superintendent of markets, weights and measures.

Under the law enacted March 2 last construction of the market on the squares bounded by Tenth and Eleventh, E and G streets southwest, was authorized at a cost not to exceed $300,000 for the land, buildings, stalls and equipment.

The market can not be built for that amount, Roberts said, quoting Maj. L. E. Atkins, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, as having reported after a survey that the land alone would cost close to the $300,000 authorized. No recommendation was made for a future course, Roberts merely stating the situation and that he was waiting for the Commissioners to decide what should be done about it.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL.

The tariff bill prepared by the Republicans of the House committee on ways and means is called a "readjustment," but it is in fact a revision, principally in the interest of agriculture. The principle of protection to American industry and labor is fortified throughout the schedules, and still more by the provision which gives the President extraordinary powers in "equalizing the conditions of competition between domestic articles and like imported articles." The President is authorized to base ad valorem rates upon American valuation when necessary to equalize conditions of competition. This is a far-reaching provision of which more will be heard before the bill is enacted into law.

The pledge of the Republican party to relieve agriculture, so far as it can be done by means of the tariff, is fulfilled by the House bill. Whether or not it will satisfy agriculture is another story; and certainly consumers will object to the threatened increase in the cost of foodstuffs. But the country is committed to the proposition that a tariff shall be levied upon all articles which can be produced in the United States, so that American producers shall have the benefit of this market. The committee reports that "domestic competition is the most important factor in regulating prices which consumers in this country pay." So long as competition is maintained and monopolies suppressed, the products of this country can be sold to its people at a reasonable price, and everybody can be kept employed at good wages.

Against the new tariff bill as a whole there can be no complaint unless the complaining party is opposed to the protective principle. Since the Democratic party renounced its old stand and espoused protection at Houston, that party's representatives in Congress may find themselves hard pressed for good arguments against the bill. They can pick flaws, but they can not attack the principle of the bill without running afoul of their party's platform. The discussion now beginning on the tariff bill will furnish the acid test of Democracy's conversion to protection.

Here and there the bill has increased rates affecting manufactures, particularly cloths and clothing materials. Protection is also granted to the cement industry against the new competition that has sprung up, notably from Belgium. But as a whole the rates of the present law are maintained. In this respect the committee rightly describes the bill as a readjustment instead of a revision.

The Tariff Commission is reorganized by the bill. If this useless appendix is to be kept in existence it is proper to reorganize it. The bill as drawn by the Republicans discards the attempt to maintain a "nonpartisan" commission, which has always been an absurdity. Unless the Tariff Commission bases its work upon the principle of protection its labors are worse than worthless. Therefore the bill requires merely that the President in making appointments to the commission shall select well-qualified men.

In one particular the framers of the House bill failed to deal out equal justice to foreign producers. They propose an increase in the sugar duty, which increases the duty imposed upon Cuban sugar; but they fail to impose a limitation upon sugar from the Philippines. Thus the European interests in the Philippines are given an advantage of 2.4 cents a pound over the Cubans, in spite of the reciprocity treaty which grants Cuba a rate 20 per cent less than the regular tariff. It is not fair to grant free entry into the American market to some foreigners and deny it to others dealing in the same article. The special obligations of the United States to Cuba, recognized by treaty, are nullified by the granting of free trade to the European interests that dominate the Philippine sugar industry.

RASKOB'S INVESTMENT PLAN.

The interesting feature of John J. Raskob's dream-child investment trust company is its potential size. He envisions a company that would purchase common stocks of representative American industrial corporations from which profits would be realized. These profits would be passed on in the form of dividends to shareholders in the investment corporation. There is nothing novel in such a scheme. His investment company, however, would have an unlimited capitalization, and would sell its shares to the vast army of persons of small income. These shares would be sold on the installment plan. Obviously, if the plan catches on, the corporation will become a giant of giants.

Finance generally has never cultivated the fertile field of small investments. No one knows what its potential resources may be. Persons with small income possess in the aggregate billions of dollars not accounted for in savings banks deposits or elsewhere, and much of it is dispersed in waste or carelessness. The institution Mr. Raskob has in mind will seek to obtain this capital for industry and, at the same time, put it profitably to work for its owners. As outlined, it appears that the scheme would work to the advantage of all elements.

American industry is coming more and more into the hands of the actual producers. The Raskob investment company, with its subsidiary to provide a mechanism through which persons of small means could purchase stock on the installment plan, should further "democratization" of industry. This, of itself, would be a wholesome development.

TACKLING ILLITERACY.

Louisiana is reported to be making excellent progress in its campaign to wipe out illiteracy. The movement was initiated by the national literacy crusade and the State appropriated $100,000 to carry it forward. It was believed that this sum would be sufficient to provide facilities for all who wished to enroll, but the response has been so great that additional funds are already needed. The literacy schools, which admit no one who is able to read and write, are now attended by 64,355 persons over 10 years of age. This is almost one-fourth of the illiterate population of the State.

Louisiana is to be congratulated on its undertaking. It is quite proper that a nation-wide literacy campaign should begin there, since Louisiana has the highest percentage of illiteracy of any of the States. According to the last census 21.9 per cent of its people were unable to read or write any language. In some counties more than 50 per cent of the inhabitants are illiterate. In other Southern States the number of men and women whose lives remain entirely uninfluenced by education runs into hundreds of thousands. Alabama has 278,000 illiterates; Georgia, 328,000; Mississippi, 229,000; North Carolina, 241,000; South Carolina, 230,000; Texas, 295,000, and Virginia, 195,000. The percentage is particularly high in the South because of the large negro population.

But illiteracy is by no means confined to the Southern States. New York has more illiterates than any other State, the total shown in the last census being 425,000. Pennsylvania has 312,000, and many of the smaller States have a percentage just as high. In the entire United States there are nearly 5,000,000 wholly uneducated people, which is almost 6 per cent of the population. A nation with the wealth and opportunities of this country can not be proud of such a record.

The objective of the crusade in Louisiana is abolition of illiteracy by 1930. This may not be attained, but already the results are attracting attention beyond the borders of the State. If Louisiana's lead were followed by each of the other States, it would only be a matter of a few years until illiteracy would be almost unknown in this country.

INFLUENZA EFFECTS.

Examination of a mortality chart published by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. reveals the fact that deaths from all causes reached a peak in January of this year greater than that of any month of the two preceding years. The company bases its figures on the health records of some 18,500,000 policyholders. This group constitutes a representative cross-section of the population and, as a result of eighteen consecutive years' experience, the company has found that its figures are in close proportion to those covering the whole population. The indication that deaths throughout the country reached a peak in January leads to speculation as to the cause.

"The high mortality rate thus far in 1929," says the company's bulletin, "has been due, almost entirely, to the effects, direct and indirect, of the recent influenza epidemic. At the end of March the combined influenza-pneumonia death rate was 286.9 per 100,000, as compared with only 153 during the first quarter of 1928. But the true death toll of an influenza outbreak can not be measured by the deaths from influenza and pneumonia alone. Such epidemics are always accompanied by a considerable increase in the mortality from heart disease, and, usually, by rises in the death rates from other important 'degenerative diseases.' This year the heart disease death rate rose 16.2 per cent over the figure recorded in the same months of 1928. There was also an increase of 7.4 per cent in the mortality from cerebral hemorrhage. These rises were doubtless due, in part, to the effects of the influenza."

The epidemic of 1928-29 was not, by any means, as serious as the great pandemic of 1918-19. It is estimated that deaths in the latter outbreak totaled some 600,000 in the United States alone. In the recent outbreak the Metropolitan estimates a total mortality of approximately 120,000.

Influenza remains a most mysterious disease. Medical science has little more knowledge as to its cause than it had a century ago. Attention having been fixed on its serious nature by the epidemics of recent years, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that more detailed knowledge of its cause and cure will be discovered possibly in time to prevent another epidemic.

SPANISH EXPOSITIONS.

American travelers are attracted by the two international expositions to be opened at Barcelona and Seville, Spain, during this month. At any season, and without the inducement of expositions, Spain offers to visitors from the New World a variety of attractions, but during this spring and summer the tourists who visit Spain will be doubly repaid in pleasure and instruction. At Seville and Barcelona are concentrated many historical, industrial and artistic treasures of special interest to Americans.

The Spanish authorities are greatly exercised over misleading reports circulated for the purpose of discouraging travel to that country. It is alleged, for example, that heavy penalties are imposed upon automobilists for minor infractions of traffic rules and that hotel rates are excessively high. The fact is that Spanish traffic rules are liberal, and foreign motorists are treated with special consideration. The authorities have obtained an agreement from all places of public entertainment which precludes excessive charges. The road-building program throughout Spain has opened the country to motorists, and living accommodations are rapidly improving.

Tourists who appreciate the historic and picturesque features of Spain are not apt to be dissuaded from making a tour of that country by the false reports emanating from agencies seeking to divert travel elsewhere.

MYTHS ABOUT AMERICA

By GUSTAVUS MYERS,
In the New York World.

Discoursing upon what he supposed were American failings, G. K. Chesterton, essayist, in a recent address in London represented that "all civilized people in Europe are now complaining of the manners of Americans—their habit of showing off their wealth, of insulting the poorer but more civilized countries."

Mr. Chesterton, it will be noted, distinctly placed the complaint as emanating in the present. Likewise other critics speaking in the same vein assume that this hostile feeling is an entirely new development, the result of American display of affluence acquired since the World War.

Taunting Americans for attributed materialism and showing off is, however, an old hackneyed practice. It was briskly in vogue a century ago when America was in its youthful stage. Book after book was written by Europeans enlarging upon what were taken for granted as American forward manners and materialistic aims.

Mrs. Frances M. Trollope's "Domestic Manners of Americans" was one of the most widely circulated of these severe productions. The Knickerbocker Magazine, of New York City, in 1833, pointedly informed Mrs. Trollope that she was little capable of understanding American principles of equality and the natural, spontaneous manners they created.

The purblindness of European critics of a hundred years ago is paralleled by the blurred vision of present day critics who can see only one aspect of America and that a distorted one.

Two great developments in America were going on side by side. Americans were felling forests, creating a merchant marine, building factories and extending commerce. But they were also making great and important social changes which affrighted the powerful caste aristocracies of Europe.

They were establishing the right of every man to vote, irrespective of whether he had a fortune or was penniless. They were proclaiming by the establishment of the public school system that education should no longer be a vested class privilege. They were abolishing the old class terrorism of imprisoning poor debtors. In various other ways they were eradicating an ancient, transplanted civilization and building a new one.

But this phase was not what most European critics cared to relate or even to see. To describe, much less give it credit, would have made them unpopular among the ruling classes of their own country. And so they concentrated attention upon what they termed the unbridled materialism and showing-off traits of Americans.

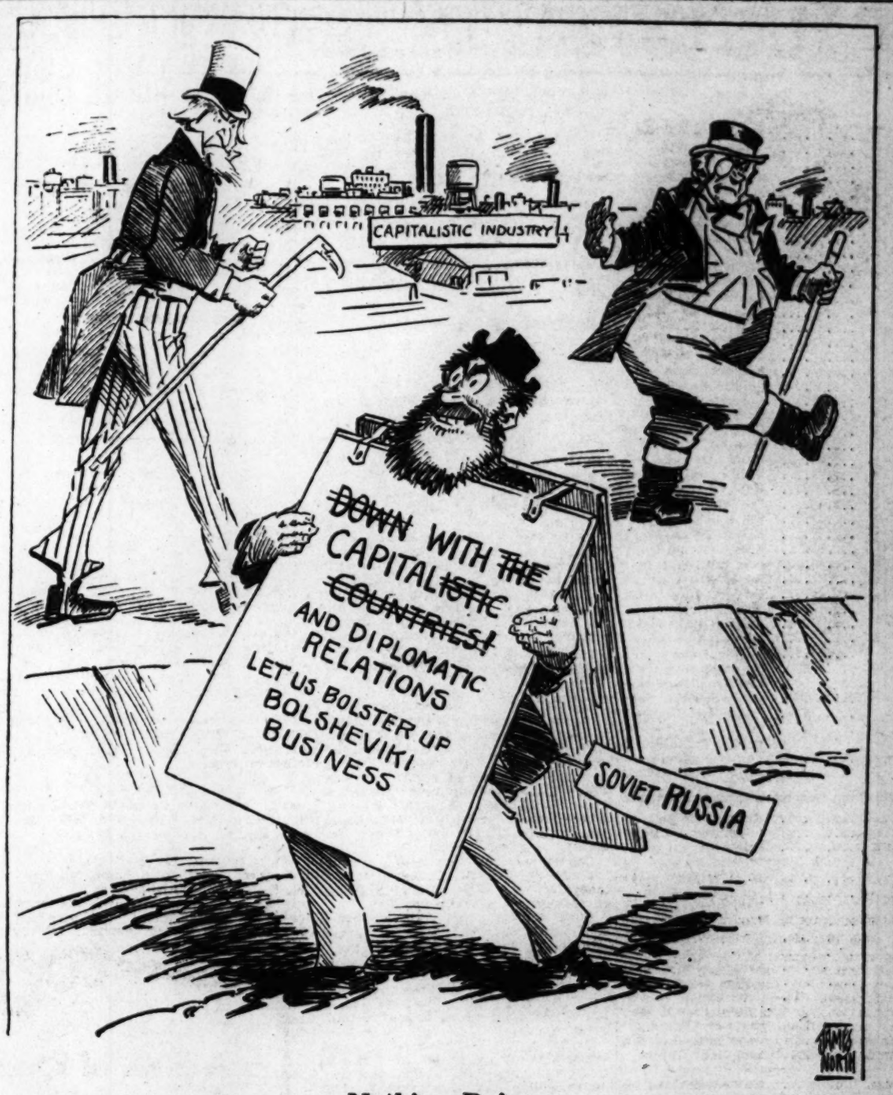
To these charges the North American Review, in October, 1848, made a trenchant reply. In England, it pointed out, the founder of a fortune selfishly sought to entail it for family aggrandizement. "But an American is much more likely to covet immediate applause and the transmission of his name with honor to posterity through the endowment of a public institution or the furtherance of some scheme of general utility. We do not tolerate gold lace, nor cocked hats, nor footmen with powdered heads and gold-headed canes. The most natural and sensible way of deriving gratification from newly acquired wealth and making a show of it in the eyes of the world is to give largely to public charities."

And the North American Review told how sums contributed by rich Americans for the support of colleges, hospitals, places of science and other institutions "put" to shame the official liberality of the oldest and wealthiest governments in Europe.

Here it may be remarked that if that obtained in 1848 how vastly more so does it in present times in America with its colossal aggregate of donations.

One of the few unprejudiced European commentators on America was Adam G. De Gurowski. In his incisive book, "Americans and Europe," published in 1857, he exploded the diatribes of the multitude of critics. He declared that great numbers of Europeans had emigrated to America expressly to make money, and he added: "Neither is the love of money less violent, less intense among the majority of Europeans than among the Americans."

Nevertheless, by sheer repetition the myth of American materialism and showing-off of wealth became such a traditional concept among the European literati that today without realising their adherence to past fashions members of that clan are credulously mounting the old, old formulas.



Nothing Doing.

PRESS COMMENT.

Tut, Tut!

Philadelphia Inquirer: Perhaps the organization would like to have its name changed to the Coast Disregard.

Yeah!

Toledo Blade: Next to thunder, the loudest noise is the first rattle in the new car.

But Not Mabel.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Mabel Willebrandt has just naturally set out to dry up the country, but the results so far would make a less determined reformer go home and "dry up."

Too Many Cases.

Philadelphia Record: According to an anonymous Treasury official, present stock quotations are "mostly sound." In a good many cases, we should say, they consist entirely of sound.

Go West.

Atlanta Constitution: Since the Leviathan can sell liquor only on its western trips it would be a wise policy for the company to conduct 'round the world tours.

It's A Cinch.

San Francisco Chronicle: All you need do to make $25,000 a year as an author is to write one moderately successful novel and have a regular job that pays $22,000.

Include the Capital.

Boston Transcript: Plans for improvements in Washington indicate appreciation of the fact that America the Beautiful should include the National Capital instead of merely surrounding it.

Prophetic Words.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: That guy who a century or so ago invented the aphorism: "Little girls should be seen and not heard," couldn't have dreamt that he was speaking prophetically about our modern movie stars.

What'll it Buy?

Detroit News: They claim money isn't as valuable as it was, but we notice the Information Editor in one of his helpful replies says a 50-cent piece dated 1814 and in first-class condition is worth 60 cents.

He's Unimportant.

Ohio State Journal: We have our moments of depression when we fear the abolition of poverty which President Hoover has promised us isn't going to include the consumer, but, of course, he doesn't count for much anyway.

Terrible.

Milwaukee Journal: Out in a Western town the W. C. T. U. is fighting the coca-cola habit. It must be heartbreaking to see papa leaning against a soda fountain counter and a child crying: "Father, dear father, come home with me now!"

How Come?

New York World: We are at an utter loss, we must confess, to understand this action that has just been taken by Gen. Juan Vicente Gomez, who was unanimously elected president by the Congress of Venezuela, and then refused to accept the office. How can such a thing come to pass? It is not as though the general were an amateur at the business of being president. He is a professional president if anybody is, almost a habitual president, for he has been president off and on since 1909, and it has been difficult to separate him from the job as it has been to separate Joe Dundee from the welterweight championship. Until now everybody had thought it could not be done.

In the case of Gen. Gomez, the only thing we can think of that might explain his attitude is that he has been reading the Ladies' Home Journal and the Cosmopolitan Magazine. If a former president can do so well after retiring to lead a simple life, he might reason he is simply wasting his time being president. Therefore he "does not choose to accept."

The Writing Man, in Cap and Bells, Entertains the Tired Worker.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WILL ROGERS, working hard and drawing income from many sources, is careful to stow away several hundred thousand dollars each year.

He says to Mrs. Rogers: "We must save while we can, for some of these days the public will get on to me and then I'll be through."

He isn't joking, nor is he trying to be modest; he is expressing a fear common to all successful writers and play actors and public entertainers.

These people, almost without exception, are a little bit ashamed of their calling; and even at the height of success they are troubled by a gnawing fear that the public will discover how useless they are and make them go to work.

This fear is a heritage of the days when entertainers and instructors lived on the bounty of noblemen and found themselves hungry and without a bed when a noble patron tired of them.

For several thousand years the world offered gentlemen no occupation aside from farming, except in the priesthood, in the army, or in the royal household.

Singers, story-tellers, historians, scientists and educators—all these were trash. They lived by flattering their noble masters.

The great tutor of Alexander was little better than a slave; the aristocratic youth of Athens was taught by slaves captured in war; and even so late as the seventeenth century, bond servants instructed the sons and daughters of rich Americans.

Always the trade of the instructor, the player, the musician or the poet has made him a brother to the court fool—conscious of living by favor, aware of being worthless, and a little bit ashamed of playing the pipes while other men build bridges.

Not a writer in the land but wishes he could earn his bread by doing something of greater worth.

This, then, is advice to youth: choose a man's size job that will preserve your self-respect.

Enlist in any one of the big organizations—steel, rubber, railroads or what not—and grow up with it.

More and more industry becomes specialized and grouped under one control. Chain stores, chain banks, consolidated railroads and the like anticipate the day when a few organizations will eliminate all friction and waste.

These industrial groups have need of big men, and the big ones are drawn from the ranks.

The youth ambitious to rank high in the modern world must align himself with one of the groups that control it by serving it.

The court fool may win applause, but his sole business is to amuse his betters as they build a civilization.

VALUABLE PLATINUM.

About 100 years ago Russia tried coinage of platinum, at one time worth only a quarter as much as gold. By 1845 the Russian mint had struck off 1,400,000 platinum coins. But the market cost of the metal fluctuated so much that the practice was abandoned. It has been hinted that if the soviet government, now increasing its output, produces more platinum than it can profitably market the treasury may store it away as a reserve for paper money in the same way that gold and silver bullion deposited in the treasury backs up American paper money, according to the National Geographic Society.

Practically all platinum comes from placer deposits, that is, gravel and sand banks which have washed down from rocks containing platinum. The exception to this rule is the platinum deposit recently discovered in South Africa. Here the metal occurs in rocks in sufficient quanity to warrant shaft mining. The platinum, however, is in such a state that it creates difficult problems of extraction from the ore. Chemists are at work on these ores. The platinum market is a prize contended for by Russia, Colombia and South Africa.

Six tons of platinum annually seem a small supply to satisfy a metal-hungry world. But a little platinum goes a long way. A cubic inch of platinum can be drawn into wire practically invisible to the human eye, making a strand 50,000 miles long. In other words, one cubic inch of platinum can be stretched out to encircle the earth at the equator twice.

In addition to its fashionable duties in jewelry platinum performs many little-known but necessary services to mankind. Radio tubes require platinum, automobiles require platinum points for ignition; photographs, X-rays, blasting, medicine, dentistry and the rayon industry employ platinum. Crucibles of platinum that withstand high temperatures and all acids except aqua regia are standard equipment in chemical laboratories.

Last, but not least, platinum is the famous "middle-man" of chemistry, the catalyst, which, with the agency of electric current, performs marvels on many solutions, and yet is itself as unaffected and continuously powerful as the strong man of a vaudeville team.

STATE POLICE.

One after another the State police systems have been coming in this country, says the Kansas City Times. They now have been adopted, in some form, in nearly half the States. There is a specific reason for this development, practically all of which has come in the last fifteen or twenty years. It is that conditions which demanded police protection in the cities also have grown up in the rural districts. The highways and the motor car, of course, have brought the change. They have helped, more than any other factors, to wipe out the line between city and country. There could be no argument about the need of police protection in the cities. When the question is viewed in its proper light, there is equally no ground for argument about the need in the areas penetrated by main highways. The action of the house in engrossing the State constabulary bill reflects the growing interest in this issue in Missouri. The proposal for a combined State police and road patrol force has had substantial support, both from the cities and rural districts. It has encountered some opposition which, it seems, is based upon a misconception of the function of a State constabulary. That function, wholly, is assistance in the preservation of law and order throughout the State, especially along the highways. It is a duty which the local agencies, as now constituted, can not perform alone. Surely, there could be no valid objection to such an aim or to the means designed to accomplish it. The usefulness and safety of Missouri's highways, built and to be constructed, will be materially advanced by completion of the constructive legislation now pending.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Rossell Holds That People Did Not Enact Eighteenth Amendment. Calls Upon Them Now to Restore to States Their Police Power.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You have two excellent editorials in The Post of today (Sunday, May 5, 1929), entitled: "The Citizen and the Law," and "A Stroke for Liberty." May I take exception to one statement? You say:

"The people are discovering that they made a mistake when they delivered the State police power over to the Government in the matter of controlling or suppressing the liquor traffic."

There was, indeed, a mistake made, the most grievous mistake of all American history. But the people did not make that mistake. The mistake was made by Congress and the State Legislatures, who, during the hysteria of war and under the lash of the prohibition lobby, enacted and ratified the eighteenth amendment and the several force-laws and regulations.

We have now had over nine years of ineffectual enforcement, which has cost the taxpayers over $10,000,000,000, and has accomplished nothing except to increase crime, dissatisfaction, and disrespect for all law, and has benefited no one except criminals and grafters.

Those of the people who are not fanatics or bootleggers are beginning to realize that a terrible mistake was made. The time has come for the people to assert their power, and to demand the unconditional repeal of the Federal prohibition law, and the return of the police power to control the liquor traffic to the States, where it belongs. HUGH B. ROSSELL.

Yes, Usury Law Should Be Enforced Against Everybody, Visible or Invisible.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial on "Invisible Banking" is timely. It ought to please the "visible bankers," and show them the light; and it ought to confound the "invisible bankers," the presumptuous depositors of the "visible bankers." It shows a way out of the dilemma in which the banks of the country have found themselves through the hitherto unheard of practice of depositors—a vicious habit—of withdrawing their money from deposit and themselves putting it out, or investing it, at a higher rate of interest than that graciously offered by the banks.

What will become of the banking system of this country if the habit spreads? When the small depositor, as well as the large, the depositor who is not a corporation or a capitalist with a big surplus—takes out his deposit and invests it so as to make more than the 2, 3 or 4 per cent generously paid by the banks, when they pay anything?

When you wrote the editorial, did you contemplate enforcing the usury law against the banks as well as against the depositors? I can't think that you did, although you did not specifically exempt the banks.

WILLIAM A. HAYES.

Consumers May Take Stock in Farm Marketing Corporations, Thus Reducing the Present 233 1-3 Per Cent Cost of Handling, and Eliminating Speculation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are those who hope and expect the pending legislative action to develop a law under which cooperative marketing associations may be organized all over the United States under the supervision of a Federal farm board; and that the public (the consumer) may take stock in such separate and distinct corporate units. And this upon the theory, that the producer and the consumer (the public) may save a large part of the present cost of handling and marketing the farmers' products, namely about 70 cents on the dollar, by taking the place of the speculator in the matter of financing the farmer. This course presumes upon the investment of billions of dollars by the public in the stock of cooperative marketing units. And considering the 233 1-3 per cent cost in the handling the farmers' product, the presumption is not without merit. EDMUND JAMES.

Time for the District to Be Lawn-Minded.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that successful lawns can be maintained under practically all conditions, it is time for the District of Columbia to become lawn-minded and get over the rural idea that grass is something to wipe your feet on.

Three good rules for young and old in the "Improve the Lawns" campaign are:

Don't go from door to door on the grass.

Don't tear up paper and throw it on the lawn.

Keep off the bankings and slopes.

It is not necessary to keep off the grass. It is a friendly critter and will stand reasonable use. Why abuse it?

H. C. GAUSS.

Where Is the Garbage Man?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you permit a peaceable, inoffensive tax-paying citizen to inquire of their High Mightinesses who rule over the affairs of the city, what is the matter with the garbage collectors? There was a time when they made regular and frequent trips, but of late they have been seldom seen. They have not averaged one call a week, in my section, since last Christmas. If the Commissioners can spare time for trying delinquent policemen and making new traffic regulations, they might use it in hunting for the garbage collector. JUNIUS.

Plans are completed for the children's horse show to be held next Saturday morning and afternoon at the Preece Riding School, 2602 Massachusetts avenue. The grounds have a very festive air with their green brush jumps, white painted fences and boxes, and the judges' stand with its gay geraniums and pine.

Children from 5 to 15 years will compete for cups and ribbons in the morning events, have luncheon on the grounds in the marquee set up by the committee, of which Mrs. James F. Curtis is chairman, and be on the ring for the afternoon show which begins at 2:30 o'clock.

The children's hunt team will be a colorful feature of the day, the children to wear the traditional "pink" riding coats and velvet caps. The family class, a feature of the afternoon show, will be one of the most interesting events, in which parent and child will ride together. Many well known Washingtonians, who, like their children, are riding enthusiasts, will be entered in this class. Silver cups will be presented to winners in all races of first, second and third place. Ribbons will be presented to entrants winning fourth place.

Among the box holders are the Count and Countess Szechenyi, Representative and Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Representative and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon, Representative and Mrs. Parker Corning, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mr and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, Col. and Mrs. William J. Donovan, Mr. George Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Noyes.

Miss Anne B. Jennings, of Fairfield, Conn., is passing a few days at the Willard, having come to Washington to attend the annual spring meeting of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union which has control of George Washington's Home.

The delegates to the National Women's Trade Union League convention being held this week at the Grace Dodge Hotel will entertain at a buffet supper this evening in the Garden House at the Grace Dodge Hotel to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the league.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Munroe entertained from 4:30 until 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at their home in Forest Glen in honor of the Columbian Women of the George Washington University. Dr. and Mrs. Munroe have

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL RITES WILL BE HELD

New Institution's Cornerstone to Be Laid Tomorrow; Leaders to Meet.

ALTAR TO BE DEDICATED

Laying of the conerstone of a new school, dedication of an altar and the annual meeting of the national executive committee will feature an all-day program at the Washington Cathedral on Mount St. Alban tomorrow.

The lower school building for boys for which the cornerstone is to be laid by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, at 3 o'clock, will have facilities for 105 boys. It will be Gothic in design. The estimated cost is $181,000. It will be completed in time for the opening of the fall term of school.

Washington Cathedral's historic silver trowel will be used for the twelth time in 30 years in connection with the cornerstone laying. Originally presented to the first Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, it was used in the main building of the National Cathedral School for Girls, first building on the cathedral grounds. The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London are the only persons besides the three Bishops of Washington to use the trowel, which is kept among the treasures at the cathedral.

The day's program will begin with celebration of communion at 7:30 o'clock in Bethlehem Chapel. At 10 o'clock the altar in the Chapel of St. Joseph of Aramathea will be dedicated, while at 1:30 a buffet luncheon will be served on the grounds.

Evening prayer service will be held in Bethlehem Chapel at 4 o'clock, with the meeting of the executive committee scheduled at 4:30 o'clock.

Vincent R. Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States; Dr. William Holland Wilmer, of Johns Hopkins University, and Dr. William C. Sturgis, former secretary of the department of missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will be the speakers at the annual meeting. Bishop Freman will preside.

Naval Group Is Ready To Photograph Eclipse

Manila, May 7 (A.P.).—Commander C. H. J. Keppler, head of the United States Naval Observatory expedition at Iloilo, telegraphed today that all apparatus of the expedition had been installed and was ready for observing the eclipse of the sun next Thursday.

"Weather conditions the past week have been favorable and satisfactory photographs are anticipated," said the telegram.

WICKERSHAM URGES EASIER LIQUOR LAWS

Lighter Penalties, Enforced Without Trouble, Seen as Enforcement Aid.

WOULD INCREASE RESPECT

Williamsburg, Va., May 7 (A.P.).—George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General of the United States under the Taft administration, believes that a more general observance of the prohibition law would result from a legislative scheme of small penalties, easily enforced, which would not merely leave it to the discretion of a trial judge to discriminate between casual or light violations and habitual liquor sales, in attempt to commercialize law violation, but at the same time empowering the judge to impose penalties of extremely rigorous nature for the lighter category.

This opinion was expressed by the former Attorney General in an address, "The Constitution and Prohibition Enforcement," delivered before students of the college of William and Mary here today.

In reference to the Jones law, Mr. Wickersham said:

"The policy of the Jones act, which seems to compel observance of the prohibition law by more rigorous penalties, probably will defeat itself through the consequences it entails. It requires prosecution by indictment and not by information, in every case. This will mean one of two things: Either a very large increase in the number of Federal judges or the continued embarrassment of civil litigants in the delays caused by the swelling tide of criminal indictments and trials under the prohibition act."

One of Us Tells Ford How to Start His Auto

Autoists, take heart! Even the mightiest of men have their troubles.

Recently the one and only Henry Ford, who manufactures automobiles in Detroit, visited Fredericksburg, Va. In fact, he stopped there for dinner.

After dinner Mr. Ford came out to his Lincoln, prepared to resume his journey. The chauffeur stepped on the starter, but the motor did not start. Mr. Ford looked annoyed. The chauffeur tinkered with the motor, but without result. Mr. Ford grew exasperated.

A crowd collected. The town "wise-crackers" gathered to aid the manufacturer in his dilemma. Finally one who was close to the front seat suggested that the chauffeur turn on the ignition switch. He did, and the Ford party drove away, sadder but wiser.

Army Dirigible TC-271 Goes to Langley Field

Scott Fild, Ill., May 7 (A.P.).—The army dirigible TC-271, which has been stationed at the army lighter-than-air base here, left today on a flight to Langley Field, Va., to which it has been transferred. The dirigible was manned by a crew from Langley Field.

Another army blimp, the C-53, left this morning on training flight over Illinois.

Horological Group To Assemble Today

Exhibit of Famous Watches Will Be Offered Delegates in Sciences Building.

Edwin H. Hufnagel, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., will preside at the opening session of the annual meeting of the Horological Institute of America this morning in the National Academy of Sciences Building. The meeting is scheduled for 10 o'clock.

An exhibit of famous watches of the late James Ward Packard will be offered delegates from noon until 2 o'clock, while the afternoon session will be addressed by Dr. James Parmalee, director of the bureau of economics of the American Railway Association, and Dr. F. G. Cottrell, director of the Fixed Nitrogen Laboratory.

The Horological Institute was organized several years ago by the National Research Council. It is a nonprofiting, educational and scientific society seeking to produce more skilful mechanicians and to develop the whole science of horology.

Second Murder Trial Ends in Disagreement

Nashville, Tenn., May 7 (A.P.).—A second mistrial in the case of Walter L. Liggett, young grain dealer, charged with the murder of Turney M. Cunningham, hotel manager, was entered this afternoon.

The jury, after deliberating on the case since Saturday night, was unable to reach an agreement.

Bakery Salesmen Win.

Kansas City, May 7 (A.P.).—The strike of 425 bakery salesmen, representing seventeen Kansas City bakeries, ended last night when the strikers accepted the master bakers' compromise offer of an increase of $3 over the weekly guarantee of $30. The salesmen had asked a weekly guarantee of $40.

Neuritis Responds To Treatment

Relief from Neuritis depends on getting rid of the cause—the acid which is irritating the nerves must be neutralized and eliminated. Thousands of people have gained relief by drinking Mountain Valley Mineral water from Hot Springs, Ark., because it contains alkaline minerals which seem to neutralize the acid—and also because it stimulates and assists the eliminative organs and aids them to expel the acid. Physicians recommend it as an aid in treating all diseases which result from kidney disorders. "Ask your doctor." Phone for a case today. We deliver.

HOSPITAL OFFICIAL IS DECLARED FRAUD

Former Gallinger Chief Accused of Assuming Name of Physician.

TO BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

Accused of obtaining Government medical positions by assuming the name and credentials of a physician, Joseph Charles Lapierre, alias Stephen Steuben, 29 years old, formerly clinical director at Gallinger Hospital, is scheduled for arraignment today before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Armed with a warrant, a Department of Justice agent took Lapierre in custody Monday at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, where he was employed. The arrest climaxed a quiet investigation of several weeks, conducted by Henry A. Hesse, chief of the investigating branch of the Civil Service Commission, and Assistant District Attorney John W. Finelly.

According to the investigators, Lapierre, a man of many aliases, has held responsible medical positions under civil service for more than two years as a result of fraud. He would not have been suspected, they said, had not he carried on a lengthy correspondence with civil service officials, demanding an increase in salary.

The prisoner attended an unrecognized medical school in Missouri, according to investigators, and after graduation obtained a position at the Danvers Hospital for Insane in Massachusetts. While employed there he learned that a bona fide Dr. Joseph C. Lapierre had forsaken practice in this country and returned to Canada, the investigation revealed.

Assuming the name, family history and credentials of the physician, which he obtained from the hospital records, he applied for a Government position under the assumed name and after successfully passing an examination, became clinical director at Gallinger Hospital. Later he was promoted to a medical position at Ellis Island, N. Y., and from there went to a higher position at the Bellevue Hospital.

After requesting the salary increase, Government officials, it was said, began an investigation to determine his merits. The officials discovered that a Dr. Lapierre held a high medical position in Tennessee and inquired of the alleged psuedo physician if he were the same man. In reply, according to the investigators, the prisoner declared he was not and that the name of Papierre was common in the part of Canada, from whence he came. At the conclusion of his reply, it was said, he offered to resign if his explanation was not sufficient.

The investigators were called into the case with a result that a warrant charging him with forging Government examination papers, making a false affidavit to the papers and receiving money from the United States fraudulently was sworn out.

THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright protected. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

In the third chapter Old King Brady calls on Superintendent Downs, of Burton Mills. Downs refuses his assistance. The old detective discovers that Downs is a traitor and has agreed to turn the mills over to the outlaws and decides to frustrate the plan.

DARING WORK IN DEATH VALLEY.

CHAPTER IV.

A Big Haul and An Easy Capture.

PROBABLY it was nothing but Young King Brady's coolness which kept him from getting a bullet in the head, for Dick Wright, not waiting to make good his claim that Capt. Thunderbolt would fix Harry for shooting the boy, had started in to do the job himself.

"Hold on, Dick! I never raised a hand against the boy!" cried Harry.

"Then who did?" snarled Dick.

"Don't know," Harry protested. Just then Charley Carter opened his eyes.

"Don't hurt Tom. He didn't do it. Some one fired from the tree."

Dick sent two shots flying into the tree. "Come down out of that unless you want to die!" Nobody came.

After some confusion, they carried Charley back to camp. Capt. Thunderbolt came out of his tent just as they came up. "What was the firing about?" he demanded. "Ha! That boy wounded? Whose work is this?"

"We don't know, Cap." replied Dick Wright. "We heard the shot, but the kid says it came from some one concealed in a tree."

"Heaven help the fellow who fired the shot if I find him," said Capt. Thunderbolt. "I'll take care of the boy; take him into my tent."

Dick Wright and Harry stood talking. "Our boys are all here," said Dick. "It is impossible one of them could have fired the shot."

Harry was relieved. If none of the gang had fired it, he felt he was safe for the time being. But who could have fired it?

A tall man, mounted on a fine horse, came suddenly dashing toward them. "Don't shoot!" he cried. "The password today is Burton."

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Downs?" said Dick as they lowered their rifles.

"I want to see Capt. Thunderbolt right away."

As he passed Young King Brady the latter got a good look at him. He started. "Mr. Incognito!" he muttered. "But no, it can't be! Heavens!" Strange thoughts came to Harry's mind at the thought. "It's the same man. I'd like to bet he is the fellow who fired the shot out of the tree and slipped away."

At last the stranger appeared and the outlaw with him. Capt. Thunderbolt strode about giving orders. Five minutes later the whole band was on the move. They passed up the hill and took the Burton Mills trail. Charley had been taken to a holdout to be cared for, so Harry had no chance to speak with him again.

Suddenly a halt was called and Capt Thunderbolt went dashing up a low hill on the left of the trail.

It was now bright moonlight and Young King Brady was able to see the outlaw's movements. He saw him halt at the top of the hill, throw up his rifle and fire one shot into the air. Then he sat waiting for some minutes, after which he rejoined his band.

The band waited half an hour and then moved on to a point where there was a thick growth of trees into which they filed. Here they halted again.

At last the creaking of wagon wheels was heard and Capt. Thunderbolt called out, "Ready for business! No firing till I give the word." Two heavily loaded wagons accompanied by several horsemen were coming along the road.

All at once Capt. Thunderbolt called out, "Forward!" In response the gang dashed out from cover and lined up across the road. "Halt, thar, in the name of Capt. Thunderbolt!" shouted the outlaw, adding in a lower tone. "Fire high!" Every rifle spoke.

"Surrender, or the next volley will sweep you fellows off the earth!" roared the outlaw, as he dashed on toward the wagons alone.

There were only six men with the wagons, and they gave up without a struggle. One stocky fellow called out, "I surrender because there hain't no use standing out agin a mob like this."

"Keep your remarks to yourself, man. How much have you got on board?" commanded Capt. Thunderbolt.

"Something over 200,000, I supose."

"Good enough. Now then, you fellows keep right on your way under guard. If you do as you are told, no trouble will come to you."

And this ended it.

In a few minutes the bullion train was again on its way with Dick Wright in the lead.

Capt. Thunderbolt gave orders to the gang to advance and they started in the direction of Burton Mills.

The Attack That Failed.

It was fortunate for Old King Brady's plans that Capt. Thunderbolt took it into his head to delay his descent by a few moments at the bottom of the hill. Here he called Harry forward. The captain had halted his own horse at a little distance in advance of the band. Downs No. 2 was close beside him, and Harry observed that the man was studying him closely in the moonlight.

"There he is, friend, look him over good. If he is the man you say we may as well shoot him before we start on the attack," Capt. Thunderbolt sung out.

"What does this man accuse me of?" cried Harry boldly.

"He says you are one of the Brady detectives," the captain blurted out.

"I'll fix him, the scoundrel," thought Harry. He laughed harshly and said, "Well, that's pretty good, but that fellow ought to know better. You know me, Mr. Grayball. Own up, now!"

"Nonsense!" stammered Downs No. 2. "This is bluff, captain. That fellow is young King Brady. Search him and you'll find proofs of his identity all right."

"I'll tell you who that man really is," Harry said then. "His name is J. Steel Grayball, and he lives in New York. He is sole executor for the estate of Elisha Sniffin, deceased."

Capt. Thunderbolt gave a start. Grayball turned deathly pale. "I only want to add," said Harry calmly, "there sits the man who shot Charley Carter."

Grayball's face was livid as Harry uttered these words.

Capt. Thunderbolt turned to him, "By the way, you must have heard of Elisha Sniffin if you came from New York. Is it true that he is dead?"

"I know nothing about it—er— He may be dead or alive for all I can tell."

"It is scarcely credible that you could have lived long in New York and not have heard of Elisha Sniffin and his millions," said the outlaw coolly. "Baxter, you may get back in the ranks. I'll see you later."

Harry felt he had gone too far to retreat, so he made a parting shot. "What I say is true," he replied firmly. "I warn you to look out for that man, for your death and Charley Carter's would put him on easy street."

"Forward, all!" was Capt. Thunderbolt's answer. His surprise came when the mill whistle began to screech.

A hurried council of war was held, to which Young King Brady was not admitted. The result was soon made plain. Two men felled a young tree near them and lopped the branches off. With this battering-ram, they attacked the gate. Capt. Thunderbolt ordered Harry to keep to the saddle. Young King Brady suddenly saw the gleam of metal in the moonlight and a minute later half a dozen rifles were projected through the holes in the paling and the shots came flying. Three men fell on the first round, and two on the second. Great confusion followed. With wild shouts the outlaws dropped the tree trunk and scattered.

"Flames and furies!" roared Capt. Thunderbolt. "I'll balk them yet. Come on boys, we'll gather wood and burn the old fence down."

Just at this instant Grayball wheeled about and went dashing up the hill.

After that man, young fellow!" the captain shouted. "Shoot him if you can't get him any other way."

Harry realized there was but one thing to do—and did it. He was off in hot pursuit after Grayball. His habit of close observation helped him here. He turned aside from the trail and across the open ground. Suddenly he caught sight of a deep gully with ugly rocks on the other side. "This horse ought to take it," he said to himself. "Well, here goes!" With a flying leap they took it clear. In a moment or two Harry caught sight of his man.

"I've done it! I've headed him off!" he thought jubilantly. A few moments later he struck the trail ahead of Grayball and swinging around suddenly covered the lawyer with his revolver before the man realized what was happening. "Dismount!" ordered Harry. "Throw up your hands!" Grayball was pale with fear as he slid to the ground and threw up his hands.

Another chapter in this serial masterpiece is in tomorrow's paper! Don't miss it! Old King Brady is going to get Capt. Thunderbolt or die in the attempt!

AVIATION AND THE TELEPHONE.

It is now possible for people flying in airplanes to hold telephone conversations with people on land. This would seem to be the hardest blow yet struck at aviation as a pleasure. Who wants to go 5,000 feet in the air only to be disturbed by the summons, "You're wanted on the telephone?"

One of the great charms of flying has been the assurance that nobody could reach you by postcard, telephone or telegram. It's a cruel world!

Possible wire conversation between a man in an airplane and a wife waiting for him to come home to dinner:

Wife—Hello, is this you, Ambrose?

Husband—Yes; who is this?

Wife—This is Grace. I've been trying to get you at the office for hours. The exchange girl there finally conected me. Where are you? You sound way off.

Husband—You don't know the half of it. I'm over St. Louis.

Wife—Stop joking, Ambrose, and tell me where you are.

Husband—I'm not fooling, hon. I'm over St. Louis.

Wife—Please be serious. How could you be over St. Louis?

Husband—I'm in an airplane.

Wife—That's a likely story! You've not coming home to dinner, I suppose, and so you've thought up a new excuse. Over St. Louis in an airplane, eh? I suppose you'll be telling me you're over Pasadena in a couple of dirigibles.

Husband—Now, Grace, be sensible. I'm really and truly up in an airplane, and——

Wife—I suppose you're going to tell me you're all alone.

Husband—No, but——

Wife—Or that you're with some very influential men on a big business deal. I've heard all that stuff before.

Husband—No, frankly, it's just a little jaunt and——

Wife—How many women are there in the party?

Husband—Only two, dear, and I don't know either.

Wife (tearfully)—Up in an airplane over St. Paul with two women and you say you don't know 'em!

Husband—St. Louis, Grace, not St. Paul.

Wife—You said St. Paul. I knew I'd catch you in a lie.

Husband—I never mentioned St. Paul.

Wife—You did, and I'll never——

(The airplane hits a tree in a fog. Friend Husband finds himself in an upper branch, badly bruised.)

Wife (as communication is suddenly cut off by the crash)—Hello! Hello! Why don't you answer me? So, you big brute, YOU'VE HUNG UP ON ME!

BRIDEGROOM, SLAIN BY LAWYER, BURIED

Mother of Youth, Who Told Him to Reveal Marriage, Is Prostrated.

KILLER, IN JAIL, IS SILENT

Amarillo, Tex., May 7 (A.P.).—As R. H. Hamilton, prominent attorney, awaited action by the grand jury here for the killing of Tom Walton, jr., 21, who secretly married Hamilton's 19-year-old daughter, Theresa, the body of the slain youth was buried today at McAlester, Okla.

The funeral was conducted by the Order of DeMolay, to which Walton, a University of Texas student, belonged. Mrs. Grace Walton accompanied her son's body to McAlester, where the family formerly lived. She was prostrated and physicians said her condition was grave.

Walton's young widow remained in Austin, Tex., in the care of her mother and an elder sister, Helen. She would not discuss her attitude toward her father, who shot Walton to death at his law office here Saturday when the youth called to announce the secret wedding, which took place last February.

Pale and visibly affected by the tragedy, the girl was able to leave her sick bed for the first time since learning of the slaying. She was taken from her apartment for a brief drive and Gamma Phi Beta Sorority sisters at the University of Texas were permitted to visit her.

Mrs. Hamilton refused to divulge any inforamtion that might shed further light on the shooting of her son-in-law other than to say newspaper reports did not fully reflect the truth. Hamilton refused to elaborate on his statement made immediately after the slaying that, "I'd rather dies than kill a man, but I had to protect the honor of my home."

The grand jury continued the examination of witnesses today and lines were being drawn for what may develop into one of the most strenuous legal conflicts in the history of the Texas Panhandle.

A fund of $1,500 was reported to have been raised already among friends and sympathizers of Walton for prosecuting Hamilton. A Fort Worth law firm has been retained to aid in the prosecution.

It was learned that three law firms had been employed to defend Hamilton, a former commissioner of the Texas Supreme Court.

THOMAS W. MILLER QUITS PENITENTIARY

Former Alien Property Custodian Refuses to Talk Until Parole Expires.

ON WAY TO WILMINGTON

Atlanta, Ga., May 7 (A.P.).—Thomas W. Miller, former Alien Property Custodian, was homeward bound to Wilmington, Del., tonight after release from the Federal Penitentiary here today on parole. Miller, who had been in prison for over a year, looked well upon his discharge from the institution shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

He went by taxi to the home of a friend, where he refused to discuss his sentence and merely said that he "was going home." He said that he would not discuss anything concerning his imprisonment or the case for which he was convicted at New York in 1927.

Miller came here in April, 1928, to serve his sentence after being tried jointly with Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General, on the charges of conspiracy to defraud the Government of German-owned property. The jury disagreed in the Daugherty charges, and the case against him was later nolle prossed, but Miller was convicted, sentenced to eighteen months in prison and assessed a fine of $5,000.

He paid the fine and today completed the sentence which was abbreviated to end May 7 after he had been made eligible for parole last October. The then Attorney General John G. Sargent disapproved the parole board's recommendation, but later a few hours before Sargent was succeeded by Attorney General Mitchell, the parole was approved and today was set as the date for Miller's release.

Not until his complete sentence time has expired will he talk about the case, Miller said. Under "good time allowances" he would have been eligible for discharge July 7.

No information concerning Miller's release from the penitentiary could be secured from either acting Warden A. C. Aderhold or attaches there.

U. S Widens Work For Public Health

Will Broaden Cooperation With League of Nations, Says Cumming.

Geneva, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Washington has decided to broaden its cooperation with the health section of the League of Nations, according to Surgeon General Cumming, a member of the health committee here, which today concluded its review of Greek rehabilitation work. Cumming explained to the committee that President Hoover had authorized him to afford every assistance within his power.

He congratulated the Greek government upon having chosen the League to reconstruct its health administration. At the same time he announced that a senior medical officer has been detached from the United States Medical Service to participate in the League's work in Greece.

Former Secretary of the Interior Dr. Hubert Work, who came to Geneva with Surgeon General Cumming, attended the sessions of the health committee. He will report back to President Hoover personally. Before entering politics Dr. Work practiced medicine for 30 years.

High Court To Pass on Radio Law

Constitutionality Doubted of Right to Take Stations Off Air to Make Room for Others—Ruth Spurns Mike.

Because of the national importance of the issue, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, sitting at Chicago, has decided to ask the Supreme Court of the United States to pass upon the constitutionality of the Radio act and the right of the Federal Radio Commission to take existing broadcasting stations off the air to make room for other stations.

This will speed up a decision by the highest court in the land, for the Federal Circuit Court at Chicago determined to submit these questions to the court of last resort, instead of passing upon them itself. The determination came in the midst of the arguments in the case of WCRW, the Chicago broadcasting station owned by Clinton R. White, which had had its power reduced from 500 to 100 watts in the reallocation of last year.

Mr. White sued for an injunction against the Federal Radio Commission, which was denied by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the United States District Court in Chicago. This was appealed to the United States Circuit Court, where arguments were heard last week by Judges Samuel Alschuler, Evan A. Evans and Albert B. Anderson.

Attorneys Ernest R. Reichmann and Henry K. Uri- , of Chicago, represented Mr. White, and Louis G. Caldwell, formerly general counsel for the Federal Radio Commission, represented the latter.

It is understood that the case of Station WMBB-WOK, Chicago, owned by the American Bond & Mortgage Co., will be sent to the Supreme Court at the same time.

Besides the general question of the constitutionality of the radio law, the Supreme Court will be asked to pass upon the right of the Federal Radio Commission to take stations off the air without compensation. This raises the question of "vested rights," which Congress has repeatedly declared the stations have no right to claim.

In both the WCRW and the WMBB-WOK cases the stations claimed that the changes ordered by the commission deprived them of their property "without due process of law," and that if they were forced to give up their rights to make room on the air for other stations either those stations or the Government must compensate them for their loss.

The Slumber Music broadcast from Station WRC at 10 o'clock most every night is one of the most popular programs on the air. Slumber Music was originated by Leslie W. Joy, studio and production supervisor for the National Broadcasting Co. In 1926 he made a survey of all the broadcasting stations and discovered that everyone closed off its day with dance music; that there wasn't a single program of classical music available during the last hour of the day.

Joy argued that from 11 o'clock to midnight was the logical time for classical and restful music. He reasoned that the psychology of the radio listener is such that he is particularly receptive to good music at that hour. Joy took his own case. At that hour he liked to sit around his living room, look through a book and listen to quiet, soothing music. Either that or sit before the fire talking quietly with the music for background.

He believed that very few people wanted to dance or to listen to dance music, because it engenders wakefulness, while the quiet music of classical or semiclassical nature induces sound sleep.

Joy's plan was not adopted until November, 1927. The Slumber Music was immediately a tremendous success. Ludwig Laurier has directed the Slumber Music ensemble through almost all of its life.

Babe Ruth is afraid of microphones. J at before the start of the opener between the Yanks and Red Sox, the Bambino declined to speak into a "mike" before which he was posing for pictures with Graham McNamee.

"Mack, you do the talking—I'll just sit and look pretty," Ruth protested when a newsreel cameraman requested him to say a few words.

THESE two crepe frocks share a number of the most becoming and attractive details of the new summer modes; the printed crepe de chine dress has a soft separate cape, and the crepe dress has a tiny pleated cape which substitutes for sleeves; both frocks show the low fullness that is a feature of this season's silhouette, and both wear feminine little bows.

Since practically every one of this summer's dresses for sport, street, afternoon or evening have coats to match, the cape is a welcome modification of this practical fashion. The pleated cape on the other frock is a happy medium between sleevelessness and a definite sleeve. The treatment of the tiers is interesting; the refinement of cut and workmanship that characterizes this season's dresses is shown by the shirring above the tiers in the dress at the left, and by the shaped line that joins the upper tier to the blouse in the dress at the right.

Worn with short beige pull-on gloves, sunburn stockings and medium-sized hats, either of these frocks would be extremely practical, comfortable and smart for a number of occasions.

What Today Means to You

MAY 8

"TAURUS."

IF May 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 12:30 p. m. to 2:45 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 9:15 p. m.; the danger periods are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The influences for today are unstable, and it will be difficult for you to make up your mind, or to stick to a decision. It would be advisable to postpone all major affairs.

The child born today will have depth to its character, and it will possess many homely and sterling traits. It will be serious minded, extremely studious, and will have to be forced or drawn into play or sports.

You possess many traits which are not conducive to your happiness, or toward the happiness of others. You are cautious and jealous, and the signs under which you are born render its subject solitary and somewhat misanthropic. You lack faith in humanity, and are suspicious and mistrusting. This makes you moody and unnatural, in both your business and social relationships. Jealousy and envy are both riding at your heels, ready to destroy your happiness and to sour your nature. You can not be a congenial companion, friend or associate until you thrust these enemies behind you. They are destroying your usefulness, all chances for contentment, and your sense of right and justice.

You have a very smug and tidy mind. You never clutter your head with things not in your line. Much a creature of habit, you enjoy a routine life, and you are inclined to work along given lines and in set grooves. You are perhaps too satisfied with old ways and methods to take advantage of modern innovations. You are suspicious of anything new or different, closing your mind to things which would inure to your advantage. You should look for one, in marriage, who has dissimilar ideas and aspirations, otherwise you will not be happy. Look for the good and not the bad in others.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RINGWORM OF SCALP.

DR. B. APPEL supplies another report favorable to the use of thallium acetate as a cure for ringworm of the scalp.

No other simple disorder has proved so trying to schools and school physicians. Ringworm is caused by a parasite which bores into the skin and, locating there, causes inflammation. The ordinary bacteria which are capable of causing pus and which are nearly always to be found on the skin get into the places made sore by the ringworm parasite. They make the eruption worse than it would otherwise be.

The ringworm parasite belongs to a family the members of which are rather easily killed by sulphur and other simple agents. Therefore, ringworm in certain locations is easily cured. But ringworm of the scalp is a different proposition. The parasite gets into the hair shaft and there it is protected against the chemicals which poison it. When ringworm gets a foothold in a schoolroom it is not easily routed. It is contagious and one infected child infects others. Infected children must be cured or they must be excluded from school. Since cure is difficult, exclusion from school is apt to become permanent. Months or years are required to effect a cure by the old methods.

As a rule nothing was gained by trying to cure a ringworm patch unless all hairs were removed from the diseased area. For this purpose all sorts of depilatory measures were used, such as pulling the hairs out with tweezers, sticking them with a sticky plaster and then yanking them out with one pull and the use of chemicals. Finally X-rays were used. The X-ray method got rid of the hairs, but sometimes bad results followed.

"Now they are using thallium acetate for the purpose. It is given in one dose. The dose is figured accurately on the weight of the child. In less than two weeks the hair begins to fall out. In from two to four weeks the child is bald except as to eyebrows, eyelashes and a thin line of hair around the forehead. In about one month the hair returns. While the head is bald, sulphur ointment is used freely on the patch. The method is not used with grownups. Dr. B. Appel says: "This is the best method known for treatment of ringworm of the scalp in young children."

They say "Opportunity knocks but once." Every day the Classified columns of The Washington Post carry opportunities in most every line of business.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WANDERER.

You with your eyes aglitter, you with a love for gold,
You that follow the beaten paths to the time when you shall be old,
idler and ne'er-do-well,
For I haven't a trade to work at and I haven't a thing to sell.

I couldn't be harnessed to duty to run at the spur or whip,
For sky and stream would lure me to give dull care the slip.
I've never done things as I ought to, for I never have wanted praise,
I've followed my own sweet fancy and in money that never pays.

You who can bend to custom, you who can save and plan
May sneer as you will at the wanderlust of an irresponsible man,
But a wild soul throbs within me, unbroken to bit or rein,
And neither for food nor shelter would it give up the open plain.

Wise men may save for tomorrow, good men in peace may die,
But hunger and thirst don't fright me, by the future unfretted am I.
I'm just a tramp and I know it, as restless as wind and sea,
Nor comforts, nor fame, nor fortune, nor duty could capture me.

"Rienzi" of Wagner, on Air Tonight

German Master's Synopsis Includes Selections of Larger Works—"Hand of Fate" on WMAL. Amherst Glee Club at 9.

The Palmolive Hour will be broadcast through Station WRC at 8 o'clock tonight, again presenting Paul Oliver, tenor, and Olive Palmer, soprano. Oliver's solos will be "Trees" and "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby." With Miss. Palmer he will sing the song hit, "Room With a View." Gustave Haenschen directs the orchestra during this hour, which will play "Button Up Your Overcoat," "Orgies of the Spirits," "It Ain't No Fault of Mine," Kreisler's "Leibesfreud," and "My Kinda Love." The Revelers have selected, "Was it a Dream?," "At Dawning," and "I'm Bringing a Red, Red Rose."

Jay G. Hayden, chief of the Washington bureau of the Detroit Evening News, will speak on "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight" from WRC at 6:45 o'clock.

Olive Kline, concert soprano who has sung with leading orchestras and at great yearly music festivals, will be guest soloist with the Happy Wonder Bakers at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

"Miff" Mole, trombone soloist and authority on trombone technique, will be presented by the Ingram Shavers at 8 o'clock. Mole started his musical career as a violinist, but his interest in the slide trombone led him to study that instrument as well. At first, most of his work was with symphony orchestras, but he preferred to play dance music and joined a dance organization some years ago. Since then he has played with several prominent dance orchestras.

The Hour of Slumber Music will be broadcast at 10 o'clock, and will be devoted to a synopsis of the larger works of Wagner, the German master. The program will include the overture to "Rienzi," "Siegfried Idylle," selection from "Lohengrin," quintet from "Die Meistersinger" and "Album Leaf."

The Palais d'Or Orchestra will conclude WRC's broadcast with an hour of dance music between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Marthin Provensen, barytone, and announcer at WRC, will be heard in a short recital at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

A four-act melodrama, "The Hand of Fate," will be presented on the Show Boat Maybelle by Hank Simmons and his company at 7 o'clock through WMAL. Between the acts Hank Simmons will present further entertainment, which will include specialties by Little Maybelle, Jane McGrew, Henry Clinton and other members of the company.

Irene Beasley and Lela Gaston will contribute a blackface act of comedy and songs as a feature of the program that the La Palina Smoker will present at 8:30 o'clock from WMAL. These two girls are comparative new-comers in the field of entertainment. La Palina will sing two songs, one "Coquette" and the other the "Song of Kisses" by Boudert.

The Amherst College Glee Club will be heard during the half-hour presented by the Kolster Co. at 9 o'clock from WMAL. "Lord Jeffrey Amherst," the college song, will open the program. Other numbers include the "Stein Song," "Less Than the Dust," "Till I Wake," "The Hand Organ Man," "Jolly Good Ale," "Pirates of Penzance" and "To the Fairest College."

WRC, WMAL and WOL will broadcast play-by-play accounts of the Washington-Detroit baseball game at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Hook Kennedy, the Jolly Scot, will be heard from WOL at 7 o'clock in a half hour recital. The station will present a Parent-Teachers' convention speaker at 6:15 o'clock.

The Hawaiian Melody Boys are scheduled from WJSV for 9:15 o'clock, followed by Chick Godfrey, the Singing Leatherneck, in a short recital. Fran Trappe, the one-man band, will conclude the program.

Morrow Family Soon To Visit Home in Maine

Englewood, N. J., May 7 (A.P.).—Prospects that the Morrow home here would be the scene of the marriage of Anne Morrow, daughter of the American Ambassador to Mexico, and Charles A. Lindbergh faded today with the announcement that the family would leave shortly for Maine, where the Morrow summer home is situated.

No further information was obtainable.

Cardinal's Aid Promoted.

Rome, May 7 (A.P.).—Pope Pius has appointed Mgr. Gerald P. O'Hara, secretary to Cardinal Dougherty, as titular archbishop of Heliopolis, nominating him as auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia.

Dare Interprets the Mode

This evening wrap of blue velvet is relieved by colorful embroidery in white and colored stones, and by a collar of brown zibeline. (Courtesy of the Maison Lenief, Paris.)

THE French theater has always played a most important part in the launching of fashions, whereas in America it is probable that the motion picture has more influence. When a Parisian couturier is called upon to costume a smart play, he is placed on his mettle to an extreme degree!

In one piece recently opened, "L'Amour a la blague," Mlle. Slova, a newcomer to the French stage, has been thrillingly costumed by Redfern in a graceful afternoon frock and an elegant evening gown.

• • • •

The afternoon dress is entirely of chiffon, printed in gray and pink in a large flower pattern. The circular neckline is finished off in bands of gray and rose, and the skirt, much longer in the back than in the front, is draped in three contrasting tiers.

The evening gown is of pink velvet, elaborately embroidered in jet and rhinestones, rather straight and simple in line but with considerable fullness hidden in its myriad short folds.

Who ever has enough lingerie? I never have enough lingerie! You never have enough lingerie! We never have enough lingerie—no woman ever has enough lingerie!

Knowing this we—all of us—will do nothing less than sit down and send a self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet that will tell you how to make some perfectly delightful new spring underthings!

• • • •

An evening cape from Lenief—that is what is illustrated today. Of blue velvet trimmed with brown zibeline, the wrap is gracefully voluminous—and delightfully embroidered with strass, and big blue, red and green jewels. And note the charming loose cuff effects, which make it easy to manipulate!

• • • •

Are You Curious?

So ten of the principal French couturiersare sending mannequins to America to show their latest models to prospective customers, are they! Oh-o-o-o, what a disappointment is in store for a lot of people. Suppose we tell you why some other day, shall we?

Work of the Winds.

THE wind has power to pick up things. During a tornado it can pick up people, automobiles, trees, even houses and can toss them about.

Buildings on a wind-made hill of China.

Today, however, I want to talk about winds which are not so strong as that. A simple breeze can pick up and carry dust. The dust is sometimes carried for only a few hundred feet, but in some cases it is carried many miles.

One winter day a terrific wind storm swept over a section of the United States, south of the Missouri River. That storm moved northeast and carried tons of dust with it.

The dust became mixed with snow which fell over the land and water of the Great Lakes region.

"What a dirty snow!" people said.

Scientists became interested. They melted cubic yards of snow, taken from different places. They found out that the dust was of the kind which blows south of the Missouri River. They measured the weight of the dust in each cubic yard. Then they obtained figures on the total snowfall.

As a result, they learned that the wind had carried more than 1,000,000 tons of dust for a distance of 1,000 miles.

That is one example of what wind can do in carrying dust.

In north-central China there are great hills of "loess." Some of the bluffs rise to a height of 500 feet. The "loess" is soil of a yellow-gray color.

Those hills have been studied, and it is believed that part of the yellowish soil was carried there by winds and part by rivers. The hills were built up many thousands of years ago, and people have long made their homes on the slopes. I fancy that few of them have ever given thought to how the hills came to be in the first place.

The Yellow River of China gained its name from the color of the water, and the water is colored by yellowish soil which small streams carry down from the hills of loess. The Yellow Sea was given the name for much the same reason, for the waters around its rim look very yellow—on account of the mud which rivers have carried from the hills.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

MAY 8.

ONE of the most popular American writers of her time, Augusta Jane Evans Wilson, was born this day, 1835, in Columbus, Ga. During the Civil War she conducted a hospital for Southern nurses.

The most popular of all her books was "Beaulah." Other books by this writer include "Inez, a Tale of the Alamo," "Macaria," "St. Elmo," "Vashte," "Infelice," "At the Mercy of Tiberius," "A Speckled Bird" and "Devota." "St. Elmo" was parodied by Webb in "St. Twel'mo." The author died in 1909.

Charlotte Maria Tucker, the famous English writer, author of many stories for children, was born this day, 1821. Most of her writings were pointed with an obvious moral. She donated the proceeds of her writing to charity. In 1875 she went to India to do missionary work and died there in 1893.

Columbia Heights Still Wants Pool

Citizens' Association Picks New Officers and Hears Speakers.

Reiterating its indorsement of the proposal to locate a public swimming pool on a site near the reservoir just off Sixteenth street northwest, the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, meeting last night at the Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park road northwest, by resolution expressed its preference for the original project rather than a later proposal to make the site into a sunken garden.

Election of officers was held, and the following were installed by former Representative William E. Andrews: William W. Andrews, president; Dr. Seneca B. Bain, first vice president; Miss Elizabeth A. Hayden, second vice president; Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, third vice president; William C. Strauss, treasurer; W. I. Swanton, secretary, and J. Clinton Hiatt and Lewis D. Peppler, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A. H. Gregory and Harry N. Stull, president and delegate of the Stanton Park Citizens Association, made addresses on the condition of the District schools, and urged that more of the advantages now being given to buildings of the junior high schools be also afforded the elementary schools.

BAR GROUP REFUSES TO FIGHT DRY ACTS

Association's Executive Committee Tables Five Requests for Such Cooperation.

MAY CENSURE JUDGES

Refusing to join hands with five organizations that requested the support of the American Bar Association in an endeavor to prevent the enforcement of the Jones law and other prohibition laws, the executive committee of the association tabled all requests at its meeting yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Expressions from members of the committee were to the effect that all statutes on the books should be enforced and that it is unbecoming to a lawyer to advocate the nonenforcement of any statute.

Names of the organizations requesting the bar association's support for nonenforcement, or rather to prevent the enforcement, of the Jones law and other dry measures were not made public.

The executive committee spoke for some 30,000 members of the association throughout the United States.

A move considered important by the association was the amending of the by-laws of the association enabling the association to censure and discipline members on the bench as well as members in private practice.

The committee also decided to organize the necessary machinery all over the United States for improving general conditions of all law schools, and also to raise the entrance standards.

It was decided that a student must have at least two years in college or the equivalent thereof before entering.

A decision was made to proceed with the extension of education regarding the Constitution of the United States and of good citizenship. This work is to be taken to the general public through literature, lectures and other means, and particularly in sections where there is a large foreign population. It is also to be introduced into normal schools of the country. Heretofore the work has been carried on in the grade and high schools.

$25,000 in Radium Is Left in Taxicab

New York, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Twenty-five thousand dollars worth of radium was lost in New York today and may be cruising around in the back of a taxicab. Its unquenchable force is burning slowly through its tiny containers and some one handling it carelessly may be seriously burned.

The radium is the property of Dr. Joseph Jordan Eller, a skin specialist, of this city. Shortly after noon today Dr. Eller, accompanied by two associates, Drs. N. P. Anderson and Vincent Ryan, left Dr. Eller's office to go in a taxi to the Post-graduate Hospital. They stepped from the cab and entered the hospital before Dr. Eller recalled that he had left his physician's bag in the taxi. This contained a small lead-lined box in which the radium is carried. He rushed to the street but the cab was gone.

The physician went to a police station and notified Detective Lieut. Michael McDermott of his loss. Lieut. McDermott immediately notified all Manhattan precincts and a search for the taxi driver is under way. At the present price, $25,000 worth of radium would be about 500 milligrams.

WIFE WHO REFUSED KISS SLAIN BY MATE

Chain-Gang Guard Then Turns Gun to Kill Himself Before Young Son.

TRAGEDY FOLLOWED ROW

Walterboro, S. C., May 7 (A.P.).—Because his wife refused to kiss him good-night and attempted to slap him, H. M. Carter, chain-gang guard, shot and killed her and then turned the weapon on himself, dying instantly, early today.

The shooting occurred shortly before Mrs. Carter returned home with Webb, their 9-year-old son. The little boy was the only witness to the shooting.

He testified at a coroner's inquest that after his mother, who had retired, refused to kiss his father and raised up and tried to slap his face, Carter pulled his gun, Webb said, and shot his wife three times. The child said he ran out of the room and looked back in time to see his father shoot himself through the temple and fall by the side of his wife.

A policeman named Smoak, who passed the Carter home shortly before the tragedy, said he went in the house when he heard the Carters quarreling. He said he asked what the trouble was and Mrs. Carter replied that it was nothing but a little family row.

Policeman Smoak heard the shots and hurried back to the home, where he and neighbors found the Carters dead.

DOZENS OF STOCKS YIELD TO PRESSURE

Bulls Fail to Halt Sagging Prices With Call Funds at 14 Per Cent.

SOME UTILITIES STRONG

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—The stock market suffered from the relentless pressure of tight money today. Pool operators were able to send a sizable assortment of issues a few points higher, but could not attract a following, and the general list persistently sagged, dozens of important stocks losing from 2 to 7 points. There was no general inclination to unload, however, and the day's transactions fell short of 3,500,000 shares.

The remarks of Gov. Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, to the effect that the reserve banks can not indefinitely keep their rediscount rates below open market rates were regarded rather gloomily in Wall street, as fears of higher rates had waned during the past few weeks.

The passing of the peak of the spring commercial credit requirements had been expected to dissipate this cloud. Furthermore, rumors of a change of Federal Reserve policy had been passed about freely in Wall street recently.

Banks Bid 6 Per Cent.

An indication of the extreme scarcity of funds appeared today when New York banks were bidding 6 per cent between themselves for surplus Federal Reserve funds, a full one-half of 1 per cent above the rediscount rate. Call money renewed at 14 per cent, a high level seldom reached by the renewal rate in late years, and held at that rate all day. Dealers in bankers, acceptance raised their rates one-eighth of 1 per cent for the longer maturities, following a similar increase recently for 30-day bills.

Many theories were advanced for the persistent scarcity of funds. One was that J. P. Morgan & Co. had called a substantial sum to pay for stock purchased in United Gas Improvement by United Corporation. Another was that recent new financing had caused a considerable drain on the money market. It was recalled that Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank, predicted on March 26 that money paid out over the month-end would be slow in returning to this center.

The day's news was mixed in character. The tariff bill was generally regarded as a bullish influence. More favorable earnings statements appeared, particularly that of Mack Truck. Radio Corporation first quarter showing of only 33 cents a share, however, was distinctly disappointing. Crude Oil production figures for the latest week, showing practically no change despite the drop in California, were also disappointing.

International Telephone Strong.

International Telephone was a conspicuous strong point, mounting 11½ points to 281½, a new high, but losing half its gain at the close. Sparks Withington was also sent up 11½ points, reaching a new peak at 219¾ and holding its gain. Stockholders meet at the end of the week to consider an increase in authorized capital to permit a 300 per cent stock dividend.

The utilities alone showed group strength, the Associated Press index of twenty moving forward, while the industrials and rails sagged. Airways, Electrical Appliance, American Rolling Mill, Columbian Carbon, By-Products Coke and Commonwealth Power mounted 4 to 7 points to new high ground. Cement and sugar issues improved in response to the proposed tariff schedules.

Radio dropped more than 6 points to 100 and closed 100¾ in heavy selling on publication of the earnings report. Cable advices to the effect that negotiations for a merger with Columbia Graphophone, Ltd., had been unsuccessfully terminated, with no present prospects of resumption, tended to swell the selling.

Other Shares Suffer.

Such issues as General Electric, American Can, Commercial Solvents, New Haven Railroad, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Westinghouse Electric lost from 3 to 7 points. Advance Rumely issues broke about 5 points more, but the common regained most of its loss. United Aircraft sold up during the morning, dropped 6 points later and closed 3 points off.

In the commodity markets, wheat again broke about 3 cents to the lowest level in five years, as the markets were clogged with the large surplus and export competition was keen. Corn sold off for a time, then rallied on unfavorable weather forecasts. Cotton broke about $1 a bale this morning, but regained its loss on reports of rain over the belt.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and fairly steady, although sterling cables were quoted a shade lower at $4.85¼. The Spanish peseta rallied from its low level reached yesterday.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Cotton was fairly active today and price movements were feverish. Values declined 17 to 22 points in the early trading prompted by lower Liverpool cables, a further decline in wheat, and continued high money. The lower level attracted active covering with some fears expressed that the weekly weather and crop bulletin on Wednesday would be unfavorable. July contracts, after selling down to 18.42, rallied to 18.72, an advance of 9 points from the previous final. The high levels of the day were reached late in the afternoon but were not fully maintained. July closing at 18.66 or 3 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net unchanged to 4 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 10 to 16 points and early in the day was under considerable pressure from liquidation and selling through commission houses. The weather was not entirely favorable, for the map showed rains over parts of the Eastern belt, while the forecast was for cloudy weather and cooler in the East with possible light frost in North Carolina.

The further break in the grain markets and the high money rates seems to bring out more selling for Western and Wall street accounts and although the crop advices were somewhat conflicting, sentiment seemed to lean to the bear side on the expectation of a large acreage and the possibility of a big crop. The early selling apparently left the market in a firmer technical position and when shorts covered late in the day, the market advanced rather easily. The December position, after selling down to 18.62, advanced to 18.88. When the market developed signs of firmness more attention was given to some earlier private reports of weevil activity in the Southern belt. Some authorities were disposed to attach some significance to the new tariff bill which leaves option on the free list and increases the duty on textiles and yarns. Washington announced that there was only one boll weevil emergence report would be issued this spring which will be as of June 1 and will be released on June 14.

Private Liverpool cables reported general liquidation on large acreage reports but covering and calling on the decline and said that Manchester was unsettled with the cotton decline checking business. Exports today, 29,336, making 2,413,229 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,956; U. S. port stocks, 1,306,617.

BONDS' PRICES MOVE IRREGULARLY LOWER

Trading Broadens in Most Active Market Session in Some Weeks.

FOREIGN GROUP YIELDS

New York, May 7 (A.P.).—Prices in the bond market today continued to work irregularly lower under competition of high money rates, but trading, chiefly as result of turnover in a score of convertibles broadened out into the most active session since the late March liquidation of securities.

Apparently the need for funds caused wide selling by banks and other holders of securities, but the selling brought no such slump in prices as accompanied the March liquidation.

A good deal of realizing took place in some of the convertibles which were run up with stocks last week. American I. G. Chemical 5½s sold off nearly 3 points, to 100⅝, contrasting with the top of 110½ reached on their last week's spurt. Allegheny Corporation 5s, American International 5½s, American Telephone 4½s and Atchison 4½s, among the most active stock feature securities, also closed a little lower.

International Telephone 4½s continued to move rapidly as the stock rose. Selling toward the close reduced their early 3 point gain to a fraction. With the upturn in the stock, International Cement convertible 5s were bought by traders and they scored a 2-point gain. Missouri Pacific 5½s, convertible into the railroad's common stock, were admitted to trading and received an active reception around 101.

Turnover of the convertibles and a few active rails and miscellaneous issues, such as the recently listed Texas & Pacific 5s, Frisco 4½s and Standard Oil of New York 4½s, swelled the day's sales to more than $12,000,000. Slight losses and a few fractional gains were rather evenly distributed through the various groups.

Foreign loans and United States Government obligations also gave way under credit tension. Prime European government issues, which benefited the last few days from more cheerful reparations news, shared in the softness.

All except a fractional part of the $52,000,000 issue of New York City corporate stock subway notes were awarded today to the New York banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., which bid 101.42 on a basis of 4.81 per cent. This is the largest piece of municipal financing of the year and attracted wide interest because of the 5¼ per cent coupon rate, one of the highest the city has paid. There will be no public offering, the issue having been taken for private account.

NATS BOW TO TIGERS, 3-2, AS RALLY IN 9TH FAILS

Almost the Naked Truth

—By JAMES S. COLLINS—

NEW YORK, May 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—American golfers, who were suspected of carrying a burden of overconfidence into the Ryder Cup matches, are unlikely to be so handicapped when they begin the final 72 holes of medal play in the British Open at Muirfield today. Not only did several of the crack British professionals outplay most of the American stars in the qualifying rounds, but Cyril Tolley and Philip Perkins, English amateurs, proved that they will have to be reckoned with in the big test which will stretch over tomorrow, Thursday and Friday. It is more than possible that American golfing prestige is in for another severe whack.

From the American standpoint the brightest feature of international play to date has been, of course, the performances of Leo Diegel, the American professional and Canadian open champion, who excelled all his teammates in the Ryder Cup matches and led the field in the qualifying play for the British Open. If this crack player wins the classic it will be a very popular victory on this side of the water. He has not been press agented as highly as some of his golfing brethren, but he has demonstrated on more than one occasion that he plays his best game when the going is hard, and that his best is exceedingly hard for any man in the world to better.

Tilden and Hunter Prove They Are Not Tennyson's Brooks.

Although Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter may need warm weather and more work to show to their best advantage, their defeats at the hands of younger Davis Cup aspirants at Philadelphia showed that they have lost some of the wonderful stamina they once possessed. Both started in whirlwind form only to weaken in latter stages of the matches. No athlete is any Tennyson's brook, and it looks as if this season will be last in which Big Bill and his pal will figure as major performers in tennis.

Story of Yarn Making Ball Lively Constitute Some Yarn.

Just twenty years ago Ty Cobb led the American League in home runs, with nine for the full season. This year, in thirteen games, Lou Gehrig has banged the ball out of the lot six times. Yet the magnates insist that nothing has been done deliberately to enliven the ball, declaring that a better quality of yarn is responsible for any increased liveliness. That explanation in itself constitutes some yarn.

It probably is more than a coincidence that the quality of the yarn started to improve when Babe Ruth began to demonstrate an unprecedented ability to slug the ball. While some old-timers deplore the effect of wholesale slugging on base stealing and sacrifice hitting, two of the most attractive features of the old-style game, constantly increasing attendance attests the popularity of slugging. As long as the customers keep coming in increasing numbers to see two, three or four homers hit out of the park in every game, the chances are that "the quality of the yarn" will continue to improve. And the old-timers will continue to recall fondly the joys of low-score pitchers' battles when infielders played in close and the outfielders stationed themselves in the same county as the rest of the team.

Hard Luck Continues to Pursue Popular Walter Johnson.

Hard luck continues to pursue Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators, and perhaps the most popular man in baseball. Forced by a recurrence of the serious kidney ailment he suffered a year ago to turn over the team to Clyde Milan, Johnson probably will be out of the game a long time. It is one more tough break for a fine fellow who has had more than his share of them in recent years.

ALL AMERICAN PROS SURVIVE QUALIFYING; DIEGEL WINS MEDAL

Cruickshank Second; Von Elm Only U. S. Amateur in Fold.

Scotland to beat the golfing world in general, qualified easily.

J. H. Taylor, Harry Vardon, Ted Ray and Alex Herd were among the famous veterans to qualify, but James Braid and Jack White failed.

Diegel and Cruickshank Only Aspirants to Break 150.

With Diegel and Cruickshank the only players able to break 150 for the 36 holes and Von Elm only a stroke over, the rest of the American invading contingent were strung out over a string of figures. Watrous had 152, Hagen and Horton Smith, 154; Armour and Mehlhorn, 155; Sarazen, Golden and Mac Smith, 156; Turnesa, 159 Farrell and Barnes, 160; Espinosa, 161, and Dudley, 162.

Diegel's sterling round of 70 was the feature of today's play. It bettered the course record by three strokes.

On the eve of championship play proper, there is much talk of Diegel, Cruickshank, Horton Smith, George Duncan and Cyril Tolley, with Walter Hagen always in the running. Cruickshank is the sentimental favorite of the Scotch, while Tolley, the big English amateur, whose play has greatly improved, is fancied almost as much as Charles Whitcombe and other English pros.

Von Elm is considered a serious threat. He is playing a magnificent long game and reaches greens consistently with his irons, where others stumble along with Woods. His play on the greens has been spotty.

Championship play starts at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Eighteen holes will be played tomorrow by the 109 qualifying and another eighteen Thursday. The field will be reduced again before the final 36 holes Friday.

The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. W. Webster

Ross, Central High, Hurls No-Hit Game

Beats Business, 9 to 0, With Pitching Feat; Walks Five.

By GARRETT WATERS.

SANFORD ROSS, bespectacled pitcher for the Central Nine, gained a place in the scholastic hall of fame by hurling a no-hit, no-run game as his team whitewashed Business, 9 to 0, yesterday at the Eastern Stadium.

Coach Kimble, of Central, said before the game that Ross was a good pitcher but had not had the real opportunity to prove it in past series games. His faith in the bespectacled moundsman was justified after the nine innings which saw Ross mow down the Business batters almost as fast as they came to bat.

Ross' accomplishment was not perfect, however, as he walked five men and three others got on the bases through errors. He struck out eleven, to show he was really in fine fettle and deserving of the honor in which he gained.

Leonard Weakens in Late Innings After Good Start.

Eddie Leonard started on the mound for Business and did a good job of it until he weakened in the later innings, Joe Brown taking his place in the seventh. It was against the latter that Central scored most of its runs. Both teams presented changed lineups because of losses of players through scholastic difficulty, Business especially using men unseen and unsung before in the series.

The game began as if a real pitchers' battle was going to be staged, neither team scoring for three innings. Central, however, broke through with two runs in the fourth, following it up with one each in the fifth, sixth and seventh, and four in the eighth. Business' only bid for a run came in the first inning, when Ross walked Chase and threw Singman's grounder over First Baseman Beazley's head to let Chase go to third and Singman to second. He struck out Brown, however, to end an inning which he started by fanning Sargent and Hardy, the first two men to face him.

Brandt Leads Batters of Both Teams With Four Hits.

The third basemen of the two teams had very busy days, in that Brandt, for Central, socked out four hits in five trips to the plate, including a double, to star at bat, while Chase, of Business, handled thirteen chances in the field, with but one miscue, to shine in the field.

Johnson Improved In First Day Here

Nats to Be Without Manager for Weeks, Is Indication.

HOME again, and again broken in health, Walter Johnson returned to Emergency Hospital yesterday with his condition announced as improved by Dr. Harry M. Kaufman, his physician, who is treating the manager of the Nats for a recurrence of a kidney infection and cold with which he was stricken in Cleveland.

Johnson's attack in Cleveland last Saturday night was sudden. He left Washington with his team last week for a tour of the West in well-nigh perfect health and his return yesterday was greatly in contrast. Accompanied home by President Clark Griffith, of the Nats, Johnson spent a restful night on the train, but he needed the assistance of friends to reach a wheel chair at Union Station.

Pale and wan with a fever of 100 degrees, Johnson was far from the robust athlete who left for the West last week. Friends were reassured, however, by the declaration of his physician, who said he was very hopeful that the infection would be arrested soon.

Ill Luck Stalks Johnson For Third Season.

It was said at the hospital that the next day or two may bring a definite statement as to the length of Johnson's confinement but the feeling was that the Nationals would be without the service of their manager for a period of weeks.

Ill luck has stalked Johnson's early season campaign for the past three years. It was during the spring of 1927 that he suffered a fractured leg in training camp when hit by a line off Joe Judge's bat while pitching. It was near midseason before he was able to take his place in the line-up. Last spring John was afflicted with an influenza attack and kidney infection, his present ailment, while preparing to lead his Newark team in the International League, and was confined to Emergency Hospital for several weeks.

Johnson's first day at the hospital was marked by a touching scene. One of his first visitors was Robey Whitfield, 12-year-old sandlot player whose own baseball career was ended a few weeks ago when he suffered the loss of a leg in an automobile accident.

Forgetting his own misfortune, Johnson spent many minutes consoling the lad who was thrilled at the intimacy of the great pitcher. Johnson invited Robey to be his guest when the Nationals play after the lad leaves the hospital and Robey asked that he be allowed to visit the pitching idol every day.

DETROIT WINS FIRST OF SERIES, POUNDING JONES OUT IN THIRD

IN DE THROAT

Whitehill Is Effective Until 2-Run Uprising in Ninth.

Myer Pops Up to End Game; Gharrity Is Pinch Hitter.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

DETROIT, Mich., May 7.—After "playing dead" for eight innings, the Nationals suddenly came to life here this afternoon and gave Manager Bucky Harris and his charges a scare in the ninth, when they scored two runs and had two men on the runways when the final out was turned in. As the Jungaleers previously had counted three times, this last-minute stand merely made the final result 3 to 2, instead of a shutout victory for the Tigers.

Earl Whitehill went the route for the Detroiters in the opener of the series and life was quite easy for him until the Nats came to bat in the final. Judge immediately started off by scratching a single over second and Cronin watched a fourth ball pass him. Gooch hit for West and singled, propelling Judge over the plate and Cronin to third. The latter scored and Gooch advanced on Hayes' infield out and Gooch marked time while McManus was tossing out Ruel. Here Acting Manager Milan confounded every one by sending Coach Pat Gharrity to the plate in Brown's place. He walked and the responsibility was put squarely up to Myer, who worked the count to 3 and 2 but had to hit the next offering and his, a pop to Schulte, blasted the Nat's hopes and ended the game.

BOBASHELA SCORES IN $6,000 JENNINGS HANDICAP

Audley Entry Triumphs in Sprint

Beats Stream Line by 1½ Lengths in Pimlico Feature.

Soul of Honor Scores Over Leucite by a Neck in Annapolis.

By CHARLES A. WATSON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 7.—Running in his best form over a slow track the Audley Farm's Bobashela, with Jockey C. Ponce in the saddle, turned in a smashing effort to win the Jennings Handicap. The noted mud runner not only earned $5,690 by his triumph but scored the second consecutive victory for the B. E. Jones Stables in this event.

S. Miller Henderson saddled the 4-year-old Omondale—Trapperd colt and he carried the purple and lavendar silks of the Virginia Stable to an ther Maryland triumph under a brilliant ride by Ponce. Far back in the early running, when his stablemate, Sistership held the lead, the colt responded gamely under a drive to send down to defeat Walter M. Jefford's Stream Line, which held the lead at the head of the stretch. Third to cross the line flashed H. Teller Archibald's Crystal Domino to save third money from The Heathen

Overhead conditions were ideal as the eight starters faced the barrier at the three-quarter pole. Sistership shot to the front when Milton sent the field away but The Heathen, showing plenty of early foot, assumed command as the horses reached the middle of the far lane. Sistership was running second with Extreme, the favorite, in third position. Rounding the turn Jockey Fields sent Stream Line along to the front of the closely bunched field but was unable to withstand the powerful rush of the winner which led at the finish by about two lengths. Crystal Domino came with a belated rush to gain third place. The winner was clocked at 1:14 2-5.

Eight frisky 2-year-olds went to the post in the fourth number of five furlongs with claiming conditions attached and the Nevada Stock Farm's Vacant proved the best of the lot as the gelded son of Volta crossed the line an easy winner. Birdie Wrack was second and Cheng Tu finished third.

Hamptonian was first away but soon gave way to the winner which raced to victory under a pull. Birdie Wrack paid 17 to 1 for the place position.

Baron King Scores Third Victory Of Meet in Worthington.

Samuel Ross' Baron King took the measure of some fleet sprinters in the Worthington Purse listed as the fifth race and incidentally hung up his third straight victory of the Pimlico meeting. The Rancocas Stable's Donnay was second with Belle of Govans, racing for John J. Farrell, finishing third. George Foreman's Equation was fourth of the eight starters.

Single Step delayed the start when he became unruly at the barrier. Virmar was fastest to catch her toes, followed by Belle of Govans, when the small field got underway. The latter took the lead nearing the half pole but rounding the turn Baron King's class became apparent when Jockey George Fields sent the Ross racer to the front to win going away. Donnay passed the tiring Belle of Govans in the stretch to gain the place position.

Georgie Fields, who piloted Baron King to victory in the fifth race, scored a double for himself and the Audley Farm when he brought Soul of Honor home on the chin strap in the secondary feature programmed as the Annapolis Purse. Soul of Honor was a much improved horse today and he won in a drive over the much touted Leucite from the Rancocas Stable, which he sent down to defeat by a head margin.

Covering the mile and 70 yards in 1:46 4-5, Soul of Honor came out of his sleep and ran over the field in the stretch run to earn the decision. Bateau was the first to pass the judges' stand when the eight starters were sent away to a walking start. Leucite was second with Montferrat running third. Rounding the turn into the far lane Leucite went to the front with Soul of Honor running fourth. Bateau, one of the favorites, steadily dropped back to give way to Montferrat, which covered the show position at the finish. The winner paid 9 to 1.

A capacity field of twelve starters went to the post for the first race of 6 furlongs, and the winner was returned in Mrs. A. Vaughan's Air Chief. Millson was second with Blandris third. C. Graffagnini's Hypnotism was a 4-to-5 shot in the race and finished out of the money, due to Jockey G. Zateslo standing up in the saddle and in a poor exhibition of riding.

When the field got under way Hypnotism was first to leave the stalls followed by Jack of Clubs and Foundation Stone. Nearing the half pole Zateslo took hold of the leader and the favorite fell out of the running. Air Chief took the lead here and galloped far ahead of the field at the finish to be declared the winner.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TARA'S HALL, $6.90, $5.90, $4.30; WARRIOR BOLD, $7.60, $5.50; WARPAIN, $4.50.

TARA'S HALL, reserved off the pace for the first turn of the field, moved to the leaders with good speed, assumed command at the eleventh fence, was steadied thereafter and was well in hand at the end. WARRIOR BOLD, rated along early and fencing well, finished with good speed, but could not reach the winner. WARPAIN, unable to keep up early, worked his way up gradually and was easily best of the others. POPLAR CREEK shook off LANDLORD the last turn of the field, but tired badly in the final issue.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOBASHELA, $13.90, $4.30, $3.10; STREAM LINE, $4.60, $3.20; CRYSTAL DOMINO, $3.50.

BOBASHELA, slow to settle in his stride, moved up rapidly rounding the far turn, came to the outside of the pacemaker to take command at the final furlong pole and was well in hand at the finish. STREAM LINE, placed to punishment early, reached the leaders with high speed, saved ground, but could not keep pace when the winner challenged.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VACANT, $5.20, $4.00, $2.90; BIRDIE WRACK, $36.00, $13.30; CHENG TU, $3.20.

VACANT, hurried along from the start, resisted keen opposition from BIRDIE WRACK, was shaken up at the furlong pole and was drawing away at the end. BIRDIE WRACK, a forward factor throughout, weakened nearing the finish. CHENG TU, well placed, was unable to improve his position. HAMPTONIAN was crowded back after the first furlong and raced wide thereafter. PRINCETONIAN showed early foot.

BARON KING TRIUMPHS LIKE NOBLE FAVORITE.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:50. Winner, Samuel Ross' ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARON KING, $3.30, $2.90, $2.60; DONNAY, $5.00, $3.70; BELLE OF GOVANS, $4.20.

BARON KING, rated close to the leaders, went into command entering the home stretch, was shaken up and held DONNAY perfectly safe. Latter gained steadily the last half mile, but could not threaten the winner. BELLE OF GOVANS raced VIRMAR into defeat, saved ground and held on well. EQUATION was sharply pinched off at the half-mile mark, recovered and raced well. LION HEARTED showed speed.

SOUL OF HONOR SAVES PURSE BY NECK IN SIXTH.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. Annapolis Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:23. SOUL OF HONOR, going in good form, moved into contention after five furlongs, finished stoutly on the outside and, wearing LEUCITE down gradually, was up right at end. LEUCITE went into a winning lead rounding the far turn, but Catrone became overconfident and eased his mount after looking back and he could not get him together in time to stall off the winner. MONTFERRAT saved ground and closed courageously.

HAT BRUSH TAKES THE DUST OF SUN ALTOS IN FINALE.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:53. Off at 5:54. Winner, H. Haymaker's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN ALTOS, $3.40, $2.80, $2.40; HAT BRUSH, $4.10, $3.20; NORTH BREEZE, $2.70.

SUN ALTOS, far superior to his company, stumbled when the break came, recovered quickly, took command at the first turn, was rated along until reaching the stretch turn and drew out without effort. HAT BRUSH, prominent all the way, began tiring after seven furlongs. NORTH BREEZE saved ground and closed with good courage.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

DUST 'em off.

Or as the gent said to the lady—with the well rouged lips "dust 'em off, kid and prepare to go to work." All of which leads us to the third spasm down at Pimlico in which the chief of staff slips us VACILLATE, a winner last time, too. Lamp the chatter appended: "Is a bit better than ordinarily rated, and the stable is down, hook, line and sinker." Sounds like winning gab to me. ALWINGTON DOLLY, a very consistent miss, is the contender and a stout one, too, with REGULAR BROOM holding the balance safe.

RUBY KELLER, which has drawn number one post position, has a slight call over BLACK DIAMOND, which won for us Monday. The latter is a very fit hoss. Listen, bo, if I slip you one that will have telephone figgers hung about his moniker—will ya kick? Well, it is none other than "Foxy Ed" Moore's good breadwinner CLARENCE LEBUS, which, by the way, has been waiting for a fast track. After winning this heat the old "sphinx" will then ship to Toronto—to gather his annual barrel of oats. HEDGEFENCE is as good as he ever will be, as also SUN KIN. In this order I fancy them.

For the graded handicap, fifth on the card, I am selecting the BRODIE ENTRY. Of the pair I look upon WELLET as the chief reliance. This is a very sweet hide and is right on edge. LIEUTENANT II, RUCONA and MUD are closely bunched.

The sixth is a very tight fit between SHAKEITUP and DANGER SIGNAL. The latter showed a corking good effort last time and there was real smart activity among the overnight layers of Pittsburgh and St. Louis. You have the answer in your sweet little duke.

BACKROPE should improve off of Monday's race and this will give him the edge in the closing dash—over BLUE DARTER.

Up at Aurora it looks like that "ace" of sportsman, Johnny Greely, will take down a kupla purses this aft with DEVON and FRANK HAWLEY.

ROESCH LEADS QUALIFIERS AT TOWN AND COUNTRY

Youth's Score Of 78 Tops Tourney

Cards in First Day's Play Are High With Wind Blowing.

Only One Score Under 80; Strong Field to Play Today.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

FRANK K. ROESCH, who last week won the invitation golf tournament of the Washington Golf and Country Club, of which club he is the champion, yesterday led the field in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament of the Town and Country Club, with a card of 39—39—78, the only player among the contestants of the first day who was able to break 80.

Roesch's score was four strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, Leo F. Pass, former champion of the Bannockburn Club, who negotiated the eighteen holes in 82, while four competitors, J. J. Lynch, Argyle, 42—41—83; J. A. Cox, 41—42—83; J. E. McClure, 40—43—83, and Page Hufty, the Congressional Club champion, 41—42—83; were also among the leaders in the field. The remarkable feature of Roesch's score was that he played both rounds of the nine-hole course in identical figures, as follows:

Out .....4 5 4 5 4 6 4 4 3—39
In .....4 5 4 5 4 6 4 4 3—39—78

Strong Field to Play Today May Top Roesch's Score.

The remainder of the field will qualify today, and it is probable that Roesch's score will fall to win the medal, which last year was captured by Harry G. Pitt, Manor, with 71. Pitt, who is now the Middle Atlantic champion, is scheduled to play today in a field which also includes John C. Shorey, Bannockburn, runner-up in the Middle Atlantic championship; Charles W. Cole, jr., former public links champion; Thomas P. Bones, jr., former junior champion of the Columbia Club; M. A. Shipley, runner-up in the Argyle Club championship, and John F. Brawner, who was the winner in the consolation flight of the Town and Country Club last year.

The scores yesterday ran into high figures. This was unquestionably due in large measure to the high winds which swept across the course but also to the fact that the Town and Country course is the easiest to view from the clubhouse porch and the most difficult to score upon any course in this section. Four sixteens will qualify.

The scores under 100 follow:

WORK ON BRIDGE

Continuing the series of "Misplayed Hands I Have Met," we have today the following case of attempting a hopeless finesse.

South Declarer, with a Spade contract. West's opening lead was the Queen of Hearts, which Declarer won. Declarer then exhausted the Spades and led the Jack of Diamonds from closed hand, finessing. East won with the Queen of Diamonds, and East and West then took two Heart tricks and later won another trick. So Declarer was held to three-odd and failed to go game althou h he was able to discard a losing Club on one of Dummy's high Diamonds.

Can you tell from the hint given in the opening line of this article, and from the description given, how the hand should have been played?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

After winning the first trick, Declarer should have led two rounds of trumps, winning the second in Dummy. Then he should have led a small Diamond from Dummy in order to make an extra trick if East held the Queen; if West held it, this play would not gain anything, but it would not cost anything either. The lead of the Jack of Diamonds by South was the hopeless finesse because Declarer did not have the Ten in either hand.

When leading a high card for a combination finesse (that is, with the idea of passing it if second hand does not cover), an essential for the success of the play is for Declarer to have in one of his hands the card immediately below the card led. With the Ace in one hand do not lead the Queen from the other, unless you have the Jack; and for the same reason do not lead the Jack for a finesse unless you have the Ten.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 7 (A.P.).—Millions of bushels of Canadian and Argentine wheat pressing for sale at 4 to 6c a bushel below United States wheat led to a record-breaking fresh collapse today of grain prices here. Corn and rye as well as wheat shared at times in the general smash. Efforts to have the United States Government ships take domestic wheat to foreign markets at cut rates were of no apparent effect in stopping the downward plunge of wheat prices, which went 28c below the season's top figures.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2½ to 3½@3¾c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed irregular at ¼ decline to ⅜c advance, oats ¼@¼c off to ¼c gain, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20c.

Initial sags of downturns today in wheat values here were largely owing to the fact that before trading had opened in Chicago the Liverpool wheat market showed a decidedly sharper setback than was looked for. This was ascribed to withdrawal of buyers there pending new depelopments in regard to slashing of railroad freight rates in the United States and Canada as a means of finding an outlet for surplus stocks before the beginning of harpest operations that are almost at hand in Texas.

Increased tension in the Chicago wheat market speedily ensued owing to the fact that Winnipeg prices made a specially striking exhibit of weakness, the slashing of values there being compared with 48 hours previous because of a holiday on the Winnipeg Exchange yesterday. Thus, Winnipeg quotations today were off in some cases as much as 9c a bushel, and not everybody remembered that this was a period of two days.

Furthermore, the action of the Winnipeg market served to emphasize reports that 76 lake ships loaded with wheat were practically embargoed at Montreal that, in fact, treat elevators were crowded with the largest amount of wheat ever accumulated there, and that railroad tracks there were also embarrassed with unloaded wheat cars. Estimates were current that taken as a whole Canada already has 12,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat waiting at Canadian seaports, 15,000,000 bushels at United States lake ports and 11,000,000 bushels at United States Atlantic ports, a total of 38,000,000 bushels immediately ready for any seaboard demand before the United States begins to move the domestic surplus down to the same point of availability.

Under such circumstances, relatively little notice was taken of word that moves were in progress to utilize United States Shipping Board vessels to carry wheat abroad from Gulf of Mexico ports at actual cost. Meanwhile previous speculative sellers were enabled by the sharp price breaks here to collect profits on an enormous scale. This action led at times to rallies, but for the most part the upturns were short-lived.

Corn and other grain showed considerable weakness because of sympathy with wheat, but recovered from the effects. Cash demand for corn was active, despite having the smallest witnessed in some time.

Provisions advanced in line with the hog market.

PROGRAM OF PARKS AMBITIOUS FOR 1931, GRANT PLAN SHOWS

Estimate Calls for Expense of $3,563,320; Increase of 66 Per Cent.

MILLION IS PROVIDED FOR BUYING NEW LAND

New Bathing Beaches Asked Along With $40,000 to Develop Sports.

One of the most ambitious park development programs to be outlined for the Capital in several years is embodied in estimates for the fiscal year 1931 submitted yesterday by Col. U. S. Grant 3d to Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and budget officer.

The program framed by Col. Grant and embodied in his estimates calls for an increase of approximately 66 per cent over the appropriations provided for public buildings and parks in the appropriations act for the next fiscal year.

It calls for the expenditure of $3,563,320 as compared with the $2,139,400 appropriated for 1930. This is an increase of $1,423,920 for 1931 over 1930 fiscal year.

For purchase of new park lands and recreation centers $1,000,000 is provided in the estimates, the same amount as appropriated for 1930.

New Bathing Beaches Scheduled.

Improvement of several parks already purchased, new bathing beaches, roadways for the approaches to Arlington Memorial Bridge, and the development of several recreational centers are among the things which would be provided for out of the increased appropriations asked for in the estimates.

The program of perk improvements and the amounts estimated for each include, Meridian Hill Park, $100,000; Anacostia Park, roads and grading, $56,000; recreation field, $7,500, and roads for section E, $17,500, a total of $80,000; improvement of new reservations recently acquired, $35,000; new walks for Lincoln, Folger, McPherson, Stanton, Farragut, Marion and Judiciary Parks, $25,000.

Improvement of Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway would cost, under the program, more than $500,000. This amount would be used to build seawalls, to complete four roads, including the contemplated entrance into the park from Florida avenue and completing roads which will serve as approaches to the Arlington Bridge.

P Street Bridge Included.

Of the total, $205,925 would be used for grading roads which are not now in good condition, and $20,000 would provide for a temporary bridge across P street. Two and a half miles of roads in Rock Creek Park would be lighted under an item for $3,000 contained in the estimates.

Col. Grant proposed an appropriation of $116,000 for the development of the Takoma Park Recreation Center, $96,000 for the improvement of Foundry Branch Park, and $31,000 for the improvement of a portion of the Burroughs Recreation Center.

An appropriation of $45,000 for the maintenance of two bathing pools and $90,000 for the construction of two more bathing pools also is provided for in the estimates.

An item of $40,000 is included in the estimates for the development of sports under the direction of the officer in charge of public buildings and grounds. Of this $5,000 would be used to provide band concerts.

Increases Park Police Force.

Construction of a field house in East Potomac Park to cost $231,000 also was included in the program.

These items, together with general expenses and provision of $162,120 for the park police force, which would be increased by five men, make up the total.

Appropriation of $629,000 was requested for the Washington aqueduct and other work being done under the same control. The appropriation for 1930 for this work was $621,000. The estimates for 1931 include $180,000 for continued reclamation of the Anacostia River and flats. This is the same amount appropriated for the work for 1930. The $8,000 increase requested in the total appropriation was the estimated increase in the cost of treating and pumping the additional water it is estimated the city will consume during 1931.

Data on Summer Milk Price Sought

Takoma Park Women's Club Moves to Ascertain if It Will Be Reduced.

Milk producers and distributors of the District of Columbia will be asked to make an early decision as to whether the price of milk will be reduced here during the summer months of this year, as has been the case heretofore, according to a resolution adopted yesterday at a meeting of the Takoma Park Women's Club.

The resolution requests that the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs take the matter up promptly for the purpose of ascertaining whether a decision has been reached to give the householders the benefit of the reduction in production and transportation costs during the summer months.

The resolution was presented by Mrs. Mary L. White, of Lamond, Md., and copies of it were ordered sent to the newspapers of Washington and nearby Maryland, and civic organizations of Takoma.

New District Justice Guest of Associates

The District Supreme Court justices yesterday had A. A. Wheat, who was recently named as the seventh justice of the court, as guest at a luncheon in the court building.

Justice Wheat has been acting as solicitor general since the inauguration of the Hoover administration and is not expected to be inducted into the judgeship until Charles Evans Hughes, jr., has been sworn in as solicitor general. The new justice will probably be assigned to condemnation of land cases now pending in the court.

North Carolinian Likely To Win Bridge Contract

Grier Lowrance, contractor, who submitted the lowest bid for constructing the water gate and the plaza to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, is expected to be awarded the contract, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Lowrance submitted a bid of $328,700 and promised to do the work in 180 days. He is located at Statesville, N. C.

$3,000,000 SOUGHT FOR CENTER PLANS

District Official Urges City to Ask Congress for That Sum Immediately.

REFUSE BUREAU REPORTS

An urgent deficiency appropriation of $3,000,000 to provide for beginning the development of the Municipal Center was urged on the District Commissioners yesterday by Maj. L. E. Atkins, assistant engineer commissioner in charge of District housing.

The deficiency appropriation would be asked for when Congress meets in regular session in December, Maj. Atkins proposed, and would be followed by a request for a second appropriation of $3,500,000, to be provided in the regular District estimates for the fiscal year 1931, which also are to be submitted to the next session of Congress.

Congress also will be asked for a $500,000 urgent deficiency appropriation in December to provide for beginning the new trash incinerator, if recommendation of Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, is followed. In this case, also, the balance of the money needed to complete the project would be asked for in the regular District estimates for 1931. The balance would be $350,000.

Must Pass Budget Bureau.

These recommendations of District officials were made known yesterday, when Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, made public additional estimates submitted by District executives.

The recommendations must pass the scrutiny of the District Commissioners and the Bureau of the Budget before they can get to Congress, which may or may not approve of the plans finally worked out by District officials.

The $6,500,000 proposed by Maj. Adkins for the municipal center would provide for purchase of the land, which lies between Judiciary Square on the north, Pennsylvania avenue on the south, Third street on the east and Sixth street on the west.

In addition to this amount Atkins proposed an appropriation of not less than $500,000 to provide for beginning construction of the courts buildings, which would be the first unit built under the municipal center development plans. Annual appropriations of $1,500,000 for carrying forward construction of the buildings would be asked thereafter until 1934, at the end of which time it is estimated the project could be completed at an estimated cost of $5,000,000.

Refuse Department Reports.

Plans for development of the new incinerator were disclosed in the estimates for the District Refuse Department. The entire plant would cost $850,000 and the first $500,000 to be asked in the urgent deficiency bill would provide $245,000 for the purchase of two sites, $25,000 for the study and preparation of plans, and $230,000 toward construction of one incinerator. Of the $350,000 balance that it is proposed will be put in the regular appropriation bill, $80,000 would provide for purchase of equipment.

General increase in the appropriations for the refuse division is made necessary by the continued growth of the city, Morris Hacker, superintendent of the department, declared in his estimates.

Aside from the incinerator funds sought, the refuse division estimates total $1,721,240 as compared with appropriations for the 1930 fiscal year, amounting to $1,613,900. Efficiency demands an increase of three in the number of foremen employed by the division, Hacker said. He asked $5,040 for their salaries and $141,200 for personnel in general, as compared with $138,900 appropriated for 1930.

The growth of the city, the development of the street paving program and other factors, such as the necessarily longer hauls to dumps, since open dumps have been closed, Hacker said, made increased appropriations necessary for both the trash and garbage collection and disposal services. He asked for $550,000 for trash and $1,025,000 for garbage, as compared with $500,000 and $975,000, respectively, provided in the 1930 appropriations act.

Police Chief Repairs His Auto After Crash

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of Washington police, found it necessary to repair his own car early yesterday morning after it was in collision with a machine driven by John H. Loveland, of the Wardman Park Hotel, at Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

The tire of Maj. Pratt's car was knocked from the wheel. The chief of police, instead of calling for service, removed his coat and, with the assistance of Loveland, made the necessary repairs, enabling him to get to his office only a few minutes later than usual.

Merchants Postpone Meeting.

The meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association which was to have been held at the Willard Hotel Thursday night to hear two speakers on economics has been indefinitely postponed, it was announced yesterday.

Aged Cabby, Convicted As Drunk, Shown Mercy

Tried and convicted of being intoxicated while driving a horse-drawn vehicle before Judge Robert E. Mattingly in Police Court yesterday, Julius Adams, colored, 74 years old, pleaded with the court not to penalize him.

Granting his request, the court remarked:

"Now if you ever come back to this court again——"

"I hope you'll hang me," the negro interrupted.

He was freed on his personal bond after a $100 fine was suspended. Policeman S. Schymkezy arrested Adams at Fifteenth and H streets northeast.

DISTRICT EMPLOYE KILLS SELF BY SHOT

T. H. Peach, Garbage Disposal Plant Head, Found by Wife Dying in Tub.

HE EXPIRES IN HOSPITAL

Using a .32-caliber revolver, Thomas H. Peach, 48 years old, superintendent of the garbage disposal at New Jersey avenue and K street southeast, fired a bullet into his right temple while lying in the bathtub at his home, 2813 Channing street northeast, yesterday afternoon, according to Assistant Coroner J. D. Rogers, who signed a certificate of suicide in the case after receiving reports of the tragedy from police of the Twelfth Precinct.

Peach died at Casualty Hospital shortly after 6 o'clock last night, three hours after he fired the shot. Police were told by Mrs. Nellie Peach, the widow, that she heard the shot and ran to the bathroom where she found her husband sprawled in the tub with blood streaming from his head. The gun was on the floor.

Police said that Peach had been drinking. Intoxication is believed to have induced him to take his life. Beyond this, no reason for his action has been established, police said.

Peach had been in the employ of the District for a number of years. He is survived by the widow. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

300 to Take Part In Massed Chorus

Celebration of Music Week to Be Held at Community Center Tonight.

Three hundred local singers will take part in the massed chorus concert tonight at 8:20 o'clock at the Central Community Center. The concert, which will be presented in observance of National Music Week, is sponsored by the Church Music Council and the District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs.

Sylvia Lent, talented violinist of the Capital, will be the soloist of the occasion and will play a number of selections. George H. Wilson, pianist will accompany her.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover and others in official circles are expected to attend. Vice President Curtis is a patron of the concert, as are a number of other Government officials and their wives.

Boy Scouts Are Made Defendants in Action

The Boy Scouts of America, their agent, J. Wallace Talley, of 307 Yuma street northwest, and the Mayflower Taxicab & Sightseeing Service, Inc., were made defendants in damage suits totaling $10,000, filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday on behalf of Ulrich S. Lyons and his wife, Mrs. Flossie G. Lyons, of 4315 Chesapeake street northwest. The complaints were based on a traffic accident of last December 10.

The plaintiffs declared they were passengers in an automobile driven by Talley. At Seventeenth and K streets northwest the Boy Scouts' agent, it was charged, failed to give the right of way to a taxicab of the codefendant and they were injured in the resulting collision. Each plaintiff, through Attorney Thomas Patterson, asked damages of $5,000.

Circus Leaves Capital While Youth Dreams

Bringing to a close its two-day engagement in Washington with its performance last night, the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus folded its tents over the city's dreaming youth in the early morning hours and departed for York, Pa., its next stand.

Memories of man-eating tigers roaming the jungles and thundering hoofs guided by bespangled heroes remain, however, to be talked of by the youngsters and their elders.

NO DELAY IS SEEN IN BUILDING HERE

Colpoys Says Trades Seeking Pay Increases Have Not Threatened Walk-Out.

RODMEN'S STRIKE DENIED

Despite the fact that Edwin H. Rosengarten, president of the Master Builders Association of Washington, has written President Hoover asking his interest in building trade wage disputes in the District of Columbia, there is no danger of the Federal building program being delayed or hampered by the controversy, it was learned last night.

While several of the unions in the building trades are seeking increased wage scales, there has been no threat of a walkout, and agreements on new scales are near, according to John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist and former Department of Labor conciliator.

Colpoys took occasion to deny that reinforced concrete rodmen walked out on the job at the new Internal Revenue building recently as had been reported, stating that he had been informed that no men were at work when the supposedwalk-out took place, but that later after a new scale had been agreed upon the men went to work on this job.

Hoover Defers Answer..

Rosengarten's letter to President Hoover asked that he interest himself in the wage disputes between the contractors and the unions, but it was learned that the President had deferred any reply to the Master Builders' head pending a study of the situation by Department of Labor officials.

"We are now confronted in Washington on the part of labor," Mr. Rosengarten's letter declared, "for substantial increases in the wage scale, affecting buildings in the course of construction and all future work. The cost of building, already high, will be augmented for and future work by the increased scales. It appears not only to those of us directly interested, but to those less directly concerned, that some steps must be taken in defense of the taxpayer, the home builder and even the labor unions themselves, as it is clear that construction ultimately will be brought to a standstill because of the extreme cost involved.

"Aside from the problem above set forth as to the great cost of building facing us, a study of the wage scale, both for skilled and unskilled labor, agreed upon three years ago, and of the decreased cost of living, will convince the unprejudiced that wage increases are without warrant.

"May we ask your thought on the matter, and whatever aid you may feel able to give in the matter affecting the great construction program of the Government, as well as all future public and private building in the District of Columbia."

Sees False Patriotism.

That only a small percentage of the builders in Washington are opposed to the demand of labor for increased wages, was the assertion of Mr. Colpoys, who said that negotiations between the reasonable contractors and the men were progressing and settlements were to be expected shortly.

"The unions connected with the building trades would have asked this increase to meet the present high standard of living regardless of whether or not there was a Federal building program," Colpoys said. "The possibility of a delay in this program is simply being used by the contractors and builders as a false claim of patriotism to cover their desire to evade giving the workmen a living wage."

With the rodmen's dispute settled, contractors today were to discuss terms with the cement finishers. This union, whose men receive $1.12½ per hour, is asking $1.25 for its members. Plumbers, tilesetters, marble-setters and cutstone workers are also reported asking for higher wages.

Signing of agreements by the contractors and building trades unions in New York City for new wage scales and a five-day week is taken in Washington as an indication of the trend of the final settlement here, as most of the unions are anxious to have the five-day week in effect.

Garrison Holds Fete Tonight.

The Gen. Hamilton Smith Hawkins Garrison, No. 17, Army and Navy Union of the United States, will hold its annual May festival tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Stanley Hall Theater Auditorium at the United States Soldiers' Home. Maj. W. L. Peak, national commander of the organization, and several members of Congress are scheduled to make addresses.

PARENT-TEACHERS HEAR SPEECHES ON RELATIONS IN HOME

Woman Engineer Tells Envoys at Convention to Employ "Scientific" Methods.

ASSOCIATION PROGRESS RELATED BY PRESIDENT

Cooperation in Recreation Is Held One of Mainstays of Fireside Ties.

How to apply scientific methods in home relations was the topic of an address by Mrs. Lillian Gilbreath, consulting engineer of Montclair, N. J., at last night's session of the thirty-third annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, held at the Hall of Nations, Washington Hotel.

Among the things which must be done, she said, is to "conserve and develop beauty and furnish leisure and interest with which to enjoy it" in the home.

The meeting was followed by a recreation hour in which the delegates were taught new games and methods of recreation by Miss Louis C. Woody, field leader, Recreation Playground Athletic League of Baltimore.

The spirit of cruelty is the worst enemy of the human race, declared United States Assistant Attorney General George R. Farum, who was the principal speaker at the humane education luncheon held in connection with the convention. "The greatest need of education today," said Mr. Farum, "is a greater education of the heart."

The luncheon was presided over by Mrs. Jennie R. Nichols, chairman of humane education.

Law Enforcement Is Topic.

A plea to back President Hoover in his law enforcement program was made by Mrs. William Tilton, legislative chairman of the national group, in a conference with the State presidents. She said "Prohibition is simply one of the new controls needed for the new day."

That children should not be permitted to view motion pictures too often and then only should be shown pictures suitable to their years was the declaration of Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, chairman of the committee on motion pictures, Philadelphia Council of Home and School Associations, who spoke at the roundtable conference on public welfare yesterday afternoon. "Little children do not need thrills," continued Mrs. Walker, "and overstimulation may produce serious after effects."

Progress of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers throughout the country was related by Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, national president, in her annual report. She stated that in a number of colleges credit courses are given in the educational aspects of the Parent-Teacher movement.

The Congress will inaugurate a correspondence course in its educational program next year. Mrs. Marrs announced that the total membership of the Parent-Teacher Association is now approximately 1,500,000 members and that a child welfare program was in progress in its thousands of branch associations.

Recreation Called Home Builder.

Recreation and play are two of the greatest home builders in the world, according to J. W. Faust, chairman of the committee on recreation, who conducted a round-table conference on "Recreation and the Home Life." He advocated a family play hour, an hour set aside on the same evening each week for parents and children to enjoy family play.

The place of art in the home and the school was discussed in an interesting round-table conference on "The Contribution of the Fine Arts to the Development of Worthy Home Membership." Henry Turner Bailey, director of the Cleveland School of Fine Arts spoke on art, and Prof. Peter W. Dykema, professor of musical educa- of Columbia University, also spoke.

After the afternoon sessions the delegates visited the Capitol and Library of Congress.

The work of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in all its phases will be discussed at a meeting this morning in the Washington Hotel. A rural life luncheon will be given.

An address on "The School and Worthy Home Membership" will be given tonight by Dr. Jesse H. Newton, director of the Lincoln School, Teachers College, Columbia University. At the conclusion of this meeting the delegates will visit the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument by moonlight.

Curtis and Musicians Invited to Hobo Feast

Vice President Curtis and all unemployed musicians in the District of Columbia have been invited to attend a hobo musicale and jungle lunch this afternoon and evening at 406 Thirteenth street northwest, "the hobo's retreat."

Th affair will begin at 5 o'clock and terminate at 7. James Eads Howe, "millionaire hobo," in announcing the event, apologized for the early starting and closing hour by explaining that electric lights have not yet been installed in the building.

Rum-Smuggling Warrant In District Sustained

Issuance of the first search warrant charging liquor smuggling in the District was upheld in an opinion handed down yesterday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage in the case of David Tavan and Michael Tilton, who were arrested in February at 1438 Parkwood place northwest.

Tavan and Tilton were bound over to the grand jury in bail of $2,000 each. They were arrested after an investigation by Baltimore customs officers and Warren A. Heddens, special prohibition agent, and accused of smuggling Scotch whisky into the city. The Government was represented in the case by Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Orcutt.

Great Expansion for City Visioned by Center Speaker

The Washington of 2000 A. D. was envisioned by Charles Elliott, city planner, during an illustrated lecture last night at the Jewish Community Center.

Mr. Elliott said that plans are being made to keep pace with the growth of Washington in accordance with transportation facilities. He predicted that the future growth of the National Capital will follow the direction of the Potomac, Anacostia and other waterways. An elaborate park system is being planned along these rivers, he said, and plans are also being made to develop Rock Creek Park, he added.

The speaker described a traffic system providing for three separate lanes of traffic on all streets, one overhead, and elimination of intersections. He confined his talk to transportation and park improvements and did not attempt to predict the future development of buildings.

Maj. Brainard Resigns For Curtiss Position

Lieut. Col. Turner Will Head Marine Corps Air Group.

MAJ. E. H. BRAINARD.

Maj. E. H. Brainard, chief of the Marine Corps Aviation, has resigned from the service to become vice president of the Curtiss Flying Service, it was announced yesterday at the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Before severing his connections with the Marine Corps on May 31, Maj. Brainard expects to take what leave is due him. As vice president of the Curtiss concern he will have charge of all operations and schools.

Lieut. Col. T. C. Turner, of the Marine Corps, with station at Quantico, Va., will succeed Maj. Brainard as chief of Marine Aviation. He is expected to take over command soon, as Maj. Brainard will go on his leave of absence May 13.

Maj. Brainard's first act after taking over his new duties will be a tour of inspection of the company's 20 flying fields, scattered over the country, to study the methods employed in commercial aviation. The first year of his service with Curtiss will see the number of fields and schools doubled, it is said.

Maj. Brainard has been in command of Marine Corps Aviation since March, 1925. He entered the aerial branch of the service in 1921, when he was transferred to the Naval Air Station at Pensacola for flight training.

During the World War he served with the Fifth Artillery Brigade. He participated in the Aisne-Marne, the St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensives. The French government cited him for gallantry in action during the Champagne offensive and awarded him the Croix de Guerre with a gold star. He also received the Navy Cross.

Col. Turner entered aviation in 1917. He became a marine in 1901 and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1902.

REROUTED TRANSIT LINES ADVOCATED

Citizens' Committee Wants Utilities Board to Bring Orderly Transportation.

MERGER BENEFITS ASKED

Rerouting of street cars and rearrangement of bus lines to give the public of Washington more efficient service without increased cost is the goal set by the city planning committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations which yesterday called upon the Public Utilities Commission to exert its power under the law to bring about these changes.

At a meeting of the committee in the Mayflower Hotel, Maj. Clayton Emig brought the matter before the committee and pointed out that the public utilities commissioners, cognizant of their power to order rerouting, were simply awaiting an expression of public opinion before taking any action.

For that reason, Maj. Emig declared, it was time for his committee to start the movement. "Now that there is no hope for a merger of the car lines at this time," he said, "it is only proper that we ask the commission to put into effect the recommendations of all the experts who drew up the merger plans.

"Dr. Milo Maltbie, Charles Hansell and Byers M. Bachman were all agreed that rerouting was not only desirable, but necessary. They indicated that the saving to the companies would run from $800,000 to $2,350,000 per year and would furnish the city with an orderly development of transportation service along the lines of the plans for the future development of the city itself."

Abandonment of some existing tracks express service on some streets, installation of downtown loops and rerouting of buses, not only in Washington, but in nearby Maryland and Virginia to serve "Greater Washington" were among the plans suggested for the betterment of transportation conditions generally.

The public utilities act empowers the commission to compel rival companies to use the same tracks, and if refused the commission has the right to exercise its mandatory power, Maj. Emig asserted.

Others who addressed the committee meeting with pleas for uniform transportation systems aiding in the planning of the city of the future were A. Bush Brown, Mrs. Frederick DuBois and Col. Frederick Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

7 INJURED AS AUTOS COLLIDE IN CAPITAL

Baby, 5 Months Old, Suffers Lacerations; Both Cars Turn Over.

WOMAN CRITICALLY HURT

Seven persons were injured, two seriously, when two automobiles collided and turned over at Fourth and K streets northeast yesterday afternoon. One of the victims was a 5-month-old baby.

John Dessey, 57 years old, of 822 Kentucky avenue southeast, the driver and only passenger of one of the cars, received such severe lacerations on one arm that a finger had to be amputated.

The six others injured are from Raven, Va. One of the passengers, Mrs. R. C. Robinson, 44 years old, was severely injured. She received lacerations and a fractured pelvis. Her husband received a fracture of the left wrist.

The four other passengers were slightly cut and bruised. They are Hazel Robinson, 22 years old, driver of the car; Chorilda Whited, 19 years old; Mrs. Thomas Silva, 23 years old, and Romano Silva, the 5-month-old baby, who received scalp lacerations.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Dessey was going east on K and the other machine emerged suddenly on Fourth street. The sharp impact of the two cars and the fair speed at which they were traveling caused both machines to capsize. Witnesses declared that only a miracle saved one or more of the occupants from death.

All the injured were taken to Casualty Hospital and received treatment from Dr. L. Jimal. The accident was investigated by Policeman O. E. Rehbein, of the Ninth Precinct.

Jewelers Select Capital Man Head

Name Arthur J. Sundlun as President at Final Conclave Session.

LOSS OF EVIDENCE BY POLICE TO MEAN TRIAL, PRATT SAYS

Two General Orders to Whip Efficiency Into Force Are Penned by Chief.

U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY CITES EFFECT ON CASES

Other Rule Tells Men Things Taken Must Be Plainly Marked for Clerk.

Warning that he will not tolerate inefficiency and carelessness on the part of policemen was given yesterday by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, in two general orders sent throughout the department.

The orders are in line with Pratt's policy of whipping the machinery of the department into a high state of efficiency, which will make every move count effectively. Pratt believes that the mere number of arrests made by the police annually is not so important as the outcome of those arrests.

Policemen whose careless handling of property needed in court as evidence results in the loss of the evidence or the case will have to face the trial board, he declared in the orders issued yesterday.

Order Stirred by Complaint.

"The United States district attorney," the police chief told his men, "has written this office several times complaining of the fact that property held as evidence in cases before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia is not available when the cases are called for trial.

"This delay is caused by some of the precincts and bureaus failing to turn property into the property clerk of this department promptly and in accordance with the provisions of the manual.

"The delays complained of are unnecessary and we do not propose to have the department criticized when same can be avoided by simply complying with the rules of the department.

"In the future all cases of this kind brought to the attention of headquarters will be referred to the trial board for action."

Must Mark Articles Taken.

Officers also must mark property taken from prisoners or from other sources as believed to be the proceeds of crime, Maj. Pratt said. The marks should be adequate to permit future definite identification and a description of the marks shall be filed with the property at the time it is turned over to the property clerk for safekeeping and register, it was said. Property must be turned in within 24 hours after it is taken.

The second order dealt with reports made by precincts and bureaus concerning complaints. Reports having insufficient details regarding the property lost or stolen or inadequate descriptions of persons sought, the order said, have handicapped the department's work in the past. Hereafter details are to be given, it was ordered.

New Building Is Asked For Zoological Park

The Government provides the National Zoological Park with only about half the amount spent by other zoos for the purchase of animals, Dr. William Mann declared in estimates for the conduct of the zoo in 1931, which were made public yesterday by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and budget officer.

Declaring that the apes, lemurs and other small mammals now in the zoo are scattered about in five different buildings in cages which are ill-lighted and for the most part improvised, the director of the zoo asked for an appropriation of $225,000 for construction of a new exhibition building to house them. The total appropriations asked for the zoo, including salaries, road and fence repairs and other needs was set at $227,830, in addition to the amount asked for the new house.

Plane Takes Tariff Bill Copy to Business Men

The importance to the business world of the exact text of the proposed tariff act of 1929 was emphasized yesterday afternoon, when an airplane was employed to convey a copy of the bill to New York immediately after its introduction in the House.

At 12:40 o'clock, 40 minutes after the 87,000-word document was laid before the lower branch of Congress, a Ryan brougham sped from the Washington Airport over the Washington-New York Air Line bearing the complete text of the bill to interested parties in New York. The pilot was Bill Grey and he had as passengers Peter John Rabbitt and Robert J. Baggett. It was estimated that more than three hours would be saved over train time in dispatching the big book.

Grant Asks Police Aid To Protect Small Parks

Col. U. S. Grant 3d yesterday called on the District Police Department to help him keep embryonic baseball stars from using the small parks and triangles throughout the city as fields whereon to develop their baseball genius.

The playing has caused damage to the shrubbery and flower beds as well as causing considerable annoyance to the neighborhoods surrounding the parks, it was said, and Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, passed the word along to his precinct commands with the admonition that the police should "stop unauthorized ball playing on such parks and triangles."
